

STRANGE MUDDLE STILL CONTINUES

DAVIDSON INSISTS HE IS NOT A CANDIDATE FOR RENOMI-NATION.

HIS FRIENDS INSISTENT

Want Him To Again Make the Race
For the Governorship—Other Combinations Talked.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., May 13.—Final announcement came from Gov. J. O.
Davidson this week that he would in no event be a candidate for governor, United States senator or other office in the coming campaign. His talk for months has been in this line, but his friends did not cease to urge him to stand for another term in the executive office, and it seemed for a time that he might consent out of a desire to continue in charge of the work of building the new $6,000,000 state-house now in course of construction.

Simultaneous with this announcement by Davidson came the report that Dr. John M. Heffer of Milwaukee, defeated republican candidate for mayor in the spring election, might run for the republican nomination for governor. Dr. Heffer himself declares he has no purpose further to involve with politics, and he indicates that he has not yet forgiven the La Follette roublets for giving him the "double cross" by throwing their votes to the social democratic ticket in the majority election, the La Follette people hope for votes from social democrats in the legislature for the re-election of Senator La Follette, for they have apparently concluded that it is impossible in the situation as developing for La Follette to be re-elected with republican votes. It is established right now that unless he get a considerable number of democratic and social democratic votes he cannot be re-elected. The La Follette people in the legislature shall have become deadlocked. The La Follette republicans will declare all party lines and all party divisions off and will vote to unseat themselves with social democrats and democrats with La Follette as the beneficiary. However, the democrats, in the assurance of getting a large number of members of the legislature, declare that the republicans will break their deadlock only by participating in the election of a democratic United States senator.
Even the social democrats of Milwaukee, while they admit the obvious fact that they received many republican votes from La Follette voters in the spring campaign in the state and county, declare that the social democratic candidates were elected on their merits, and that the party made and will make no bargain with the La Follette people with respect to voting for United States senator.

A fact that has come to be well known in the Wisconsin political situation is that the anti-La Follette or Taft republicans are not just now in harmony. The Davidson people are not pleased with the manner in which W. D. Connor of Marshfield has projected himself into the seat of state chairman and is running the campaign notwithstanding the claim of Connor to having been commissioned personally by the president of Washington to encompass the retirement of the chief insurgent, Senator La Follette. The Davidson people declare that Connor declared that Davidson be a candidate in the primary for United States senator against La Follette not to elect Davidson but to dispose of him as a genuine candidate. It seemed that it was not Con-nor's expectation to prevent La Follette from winning the "straw vote" endorsement to be gained by the primary election but to head off La Follette by going directly after the members of the next legislature.
After La Follette should be headed off it would be time enough to introduce the party upon a dark horse. This dark horse could hardly be the man whom La Follette had defeated in the primary and so the Davidson people charged Connor's purpose to be to shelve Davidson by running him against La Follette in the primary.
La Davidson people have begun negotiations with the government of Cuba to secure permission for rubbing the wreck of the battleship "Maine".

RESUME TRIAL OF WAUSAU MURDERER

Ferdinand Ziegler, Injured in Runway Yesterday, Brought to Court in Carriage.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Wausau, Wis., May 13.—The Ziegler murder trial was resumed this morning after the delay caused by the accident yesterday when the prisoner was thrown from a carriage and injured. He was brought into court by Sheriff Sells in a hack, but was suffering great pain and was unable to sit in a chair. He was placed on chairs on which he was laid as his arms were broken and he was otherwise injured. Dr. Emilie Ray, who assisted in performing the post mortem examination over the body of Mrs. Mary Stetle, told of making the examination of the abdominal organs and of the cause of her death. He said the wounds were caused by some hard instrument and that organs of the woman were in a healthy condition except for the injuries.

CALIFORNIA "U" BEGINS JUBILEE

In Commemoration Of Its Founding 50 Years Ago—President Hadley Of Yale To Deliver Address

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Berkeley, Cal., May 13.—A week's celebration of the golden jubilee of the University of California began today in commemoration of the founding of the institution and the work it has accomplished during the fifty years of its existence. Hundreds of graduates and other friends of the university are returning for the semi-centennial celebration. In honor of the occasion the city of Berkeley as well as the college buildings and grounds is profusely decorated in the university colors of blue and gold.

The program prepared for the celebration is replete with interesting and attractive features and includes the regular commencement exercises of the university. The senior hall, the presentation of a Greek play and a big athletic meet on California field are among the events scheduled for the remainder of this week. The athletic meet is to be held tomorrow and will have as its participants the crack athletes of the five great universities of the Pacific coast—Washington, Nevada, Oregon, Stanford and California.

The baccalaureate sermon is to be delivered Sunday and on the following day there will be numerous class and fraternity reunions and other affairs of a social nature.

Tuesday has been set aside for the main exercises of the golden jubilee celebration. The day's program will begin in the morning with the delivery of the jubilee address by President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale University. In the afternoon a "good of the university" meeting will be held in the Greek theatre.

A monster illuminated parade Tuesday night, marching through the streets of Berkeley and across the campus, will furnish the big spectacle feature of the celebration. The parade promises to be one of the most magnificent affairs of its kind ever seen in this section of the country. A huge dragon, manipulated by students of the university from China, will be one of the special features.
The Japanese students will also have a unique float in the parade, and the Indian students and the Spanish students will contribute unique features. At the conclusion of the pageant there will be a grand pyrotechnic display on the university campus.

The university was founded first as the College of California, and from a humble beginning has grown to be one of the most important centers of education in the United States, while among its graduates are numbered scores of men who have distinguished themselves in the professions, in commercial life and in the political world.
The "father of the university" was Professor Henry Durant, who established a school in Oakland in 1853.
The College of California was, through his influence and suggestion, incorporated in 1855, and he was enabled to bring about the organization as a working institution some four or five years later. Prof. Durant continued his connection with the institution until he was enabled to bring about the consummation of his hopes by merging it into the University of California. This he accomplished in 1869 when the College of California, which had been maintained as a private corporation, transferred its rights to the University of California, which had been organized and approved by the legislature the year before. Prof. Durant became the first president of the university and served in that capacity for about a year.
Since 1871, in which year President Durant resigned, the university has had seven presidents, as follows:
Daniel C. Gilman, 1871-76; John Le Conte, 1876-81; William Thomas Reid, 1881-86; Edward Singleton Holden, 1886-88; Horace Davis, 1888-90; Martin Kellogg, 1890-99; Benjamin Ide Wheeler, 1899-1910.

FAMOUS SOLDIER TO VISIT CANADA

General Sir John French, Brilliant
From Liverpool

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
London, May 13.—General Sir John French sailed today from Liverpool for Canada, where he is to spend a month or two in a semi-official tour of inspection of the militia forces and defenses of the Dominion. Upon his arrival in Quebec he will proceed direct to Toronto to attend the unveiling on May 24 of the memorial erected in that city to the Toronto soldiers who fell in the South African war. After leaving Toronto Sir John will confer with Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, and will inspect the Quebec garrison and the military camps in the neighborhood of Montreal.
He will also visit Kingston, London, Niagara Falls and other points before returning to England.

General Sir John French is one of the most distinguished officers of the British army and has had a truly meteoric career. Born in 1852, he followed to pass his examinations for the army, and took refuge in the ranks of the militia. Through this backdoor to the regular establishment, he eventually entered the 8th Hussars in 1874. There was absolutely nothing in his early career which could be construed as a forecast of the military triumphs which he was to achieve later. His time came in the Boer war when he gained rapid promotions for his services in the relief of Kimberley. He was the first officer to win a major's commission in the South African campaign and at the time of his promotion he was the youngest officer to reach that rank in the army list.

TEXAS TRAVELERS HOLD CONVENTION

Sixteenth Annual Session Of Grand Council, U. C. T. Of Lone Star State Opens At Waco.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Waco, Texas, May 13.—A great army of commercial travelers,
"Knights of the trip," invaded Waco today for opening of the sixteenth annual session of the grand council of Texas, United Commercial Travelers. The freedom of the city has been turned over to the visitors for the two days of their stay and public buildings and business houses are decorated in their honor. Shortly after 5 o'clock this morning the delegates formed in procession and marched to the City Hall, where the gathering was opened with an address of welcome by Mayor Mistr, W. J. Hughes grand convener, responded for the visitors, and the convention then took up the regular order of business. A business session for the election of officers, followed by an automobile ride and a reception at the Country Club, will bring the gathering to a close tomorrow.

her. She mortgaged her home for $1,000 and went to Menominee, Michigan with him to get married.
On arriving there she says Duer serted her. Duer was taken to Waupun today to serve a nine months term for abandonment.

GIVES DEFINITION AS TO INSURGENCY

Congressman Davidson Defines Two Different Kinds of Insurgents in Congress.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Oshkosh, Wis., May 13.—Congressman J. H. Davidson of this city returned home last night with his family. He was asked today point-blank if he was an insurgent. After hesitating a moment, he said, "I am," and then corrected his statement by saying, "There are two kinds of insurgents, so-called insurgents who are opposed to everything, including administrations, and real insurgents who are opposed to administrations." He said the so-called insurgents were very few in number and were in the minority. Mr. Davidson said he was an insurgent in being in favor of a legislation and rules of the house as to the committee, but he was in favor of policy of the administration and intended to support them. He said the reason Cannon was not elected from his position at this time was because it was feared chaos would follow and it was thought better to let him continue until March when his term expires. The congressman said it was certain that Cannon would not return to the speakership even if he wanted to. He also expressed the opinion that Colonel Roosevelt would not agree to be a candidate for the third term and that prospects were that Taft would run for re-election and that the democrats would probably put in either Governor Harmon of Ohio or Mayor Gaynor of New York.

both of the town of Janesville.
Quester Anxious to Settle: Four well-known married men who while playing pool were denied admittance to a little farmhouse up river Wednesday afternoon vented their ill will against a helpless woman by trampling down her garden and stealing a goose belonging to her little girl, and putting vile messages to the mother in the mouth of the little child. The matter is now very anxious to settle for all damage and keep out of court.
Action on Mechanic's Lien: Several witnesses were examined in circuit

Frank C. Boedel vs. Charles Calver Pugh, an action to foreclose on a mechanic's lien, and the case was continued to enable the plaintiff to secure the testimony of W. S. Jacobsen, Judge Graham went to Jaf-cobsen this noon and will be here again tomorrow morning to hear evidence and discuss cases.
"The Making of Americans," the subject to be discussed at the Presbyterian church next Sunday evening, is of general interest. Dr. Laughlin was in New York last month and will speak on "What I Saw at Ellis Island."
The lecture, with stereopticon views, will be a discussion of how Americans are made. To be indifferent to this subject is to be guilty of negligence with reference to a matter that is mighty high every one who lives under the stars and stripes. What shall we do with the hundreds of thousands of people who are coming to our shores seeking homes; where do they come from, and what will they do with us, are all interesting questions.
Play Practice Game: The baseball team of the Parker Ice company will play a practice game at Athletic Park tomorrow afternoon.

KOSHKONONG.

Koshkonong, May 13.—Rev. Mr. Foster of Brookfield will preach at Otter Creek church Sunday, May 15.

Miss Mary Finch of Ft. Atkinson is doing dressmaking in this locality this week.

George Pounder unloaded several carloads of tile here this week to be used for draining on the farm.

Ralph Buchanan and Harold Mohr of Janesville spent from Friday to Monday with Raymond and Kenneth Brown.

The ice cream social held at Herbert Robinson's last Friday night brought out a good crowd and five gallons of cream were disposed of.

The alto and tenor duet rendered at the church services Sunday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Robinson was much enjoyed by the audience.

Mrs. Charles Blandell of Milton Junction visited Mrs. John Deldrick on Wednesday of last week.

Mrs. Herbert Robinson and Miss Esther Shannon were elected delegates from Otter Creek Sunday school to the Sunday School convention to be held at Edgerton soon.

CAMPAIGN FOR THE YOUNG MEN IS NOW COMING ALONG FINE

Soloist Natzger Came. Last Evening and Enthusiastic Meeting Was Held—Fine Meeting Tonight.

Everett R. Natzger, the soloist who is to assist Dr. Perry Edwards Powell in the campaign for young men and boys in this city arrived here last evening and took part in the meeting held at the Methodist M. E. church.

Natzger sang and had charge of the musical part of the program, leading the boys' singing and whistling chorus. Dr. Powell gave the address to the boys, speaking on the subject, "Plumbe For Keeps," applying the game of marbles to life.

"Life," said he, "is a game with the soul at stake, and we play either with Satan or Jesus. We play with the one or the other for keeps." He told stories of those who are losing for keeps and spoke of the usual objections to taking a stand for the church.

The first is that the person who does it is laughed at. Second there is the idea that there are too many "don'ts" before the game can be enjoyed.

This evening Dr. Powell will speak on the subject "Who Shall Be King?" and Mr. Natzger will have charge of the singing and whistling chorus. The Sunday School class of boys taught by Charles Atkinson are planning to attend together and have had seats in the audience room reserved for them.

"We'll have a big time" tonight," said Dr. Powell. "Till all the young men and boys to come."

Thirteenth Lucky Day.
Mr. Natzger is expecting musical success at the meeting tonight, as the number "13" and Friday the thirteenth has always failed to bring about the "hoodoo" that number is popularly supposed to cause. Thirteen has always been "lucky" with him. He and his twin brother also a soloist, were born on August thirteenth; his father was the oldest of a family of thirteen children; his mother was also one of thirteen children and they were married on the thirteenth. Mr. Natzger's brother is now traveling with Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman in England. Both young men are very similar and the one has often substituted for the other and had a few who were intimate with them have known the difference.

Shakespeare's Greatest Play.

It is impossible to any which of Shakespeare's plays is the "greatest." It is safe to say that the greatest of his productions are "The Tempest," "Julius Caesar," "Hamlet," "Lea," "Macbeth" and "Othello," but to pitch upon any one of these six, or of the others, as being the greatest would be a bit of unpardonable temerity. It is a question of individual taste and judgment. Some claim that "Hamlet" bears the palm, others are found to be in favor of giving that high honor to "Macbeth," while each one of his 15 or 20 greater plays seems the "greatest" to some people. Perhaps the most talked of, if not the most popular of the Shakespearean dramas is "Hamlet," while the majority of the profounder Shakespearean critics unite in pronouncing "The Tempest" to be the high-water mark of the great dramatist's wonderful genius.

True Education.

The entire object of true education is to make people not merely do the right things, but enjoy the right things—not merely industrious, but to love industry—not merely learned, but to love knowledge—not merely just, but to love purity—not merely pure, but to hunger and thirst after justice.—John Ruskin.

Axe Train Lighting System.
A new axle train lighting system has recently been devised, in which the generator is located in the baggage car of the train. The generator is placed in the body of the car, where it is open to inspection at any time, and it is driven by belts from the axle of one of the trucks. The belts are made self-adjusting, so as to take up slack due to the flexing of the springs. A storage battery which is charged by the dynamo serves to furnish current for the lights when the train is standing still.

Yankee Bread

"Good to the Last Crumb" HEALTHFUL and NUTRITIOUS

The yeast cells cause fermentation in the dough. This continues until the bread is baked in a heat of 212 degrees.

Your oven has a maximum temperature of 20 degrees and it is dry heat.

Such heat bakes the crust to a crisp and is then unable to penetrate the center of the loaf. The crust keeps the heat out but retains the steam.

That's why home-baked bread is almost moist. But the center of the loaf is only half baked.

So the yeast cells are never killed. They continue to ferment and form gas in the stomach. They cause indigestion.

Our tremendous heat of 210 degrees kills every yeast cell and makes a healthful, nutritious bread.

Try a loaf tomorrow. See at your grocer or from our wagons, fresh every morning.

CHANGES MAY BE MADE IN TRAIN SCHEDULES SUNDAY

Announcement Made That Sunday Only Fond du Lac Passenger Will Be Installed.

According to advices from Fond du Lac, the road is about to make some changes in the trains on the Northern Wisconsin division and these changes will be incorporated in the new time table which is expected to appear next Sunday. The changes on the above named division will consist simply in the installation of the Sunday train known as the Fond du Lac passenger, which leaves this city at 7 a. m. and arrives at Fond du Lac at 9:40, leaving there at 5:25 p. m. and arriving at this city at 8:45. These trains were run last summer and are known as 27 and 28. Other changes which are said to have been planned, will not affect this city. Whether or not any changes will be made on the Wisconsin and Madison divisions is not known here although it is rumored that 528 will be sent through this city instead of via Hanover.

Two new machinists, S. D. Angus and F. Frank of Chicago, were added to the round house force this morning.

Engineer Wilson and Fireman Hess took the Burlington turn around out this morning in place of Engineer Dudley and Fireman Gary on account of 582 being held out yesterday.

Fireman Wilkins went out on 588 today in place of W. Wilke, who is taking a short lay-off.

Engineer J. B. Knuffman has displaced Fireman R. K. Smith as night dispatcher.

The 9 a. m. switch engine was placed in service again today and it is expected that the night switch engine which was taken out last night will be put on tonight.

Mort II. Singer announces himself as merely the producer of "Miss Nobody from Starland," the stupendous musical comedy production that appears at Myers Theatre on Thursday, May 19. But it appears that the idea of the title character and some of the more important incidents of the plot are the result of his suggestions to the authors. The "Miss Nobody" of the chorus who is portrayed in the play, it seems formerly adorned the swaying front row at the Princess Theatre, Chicago, where her social and financial exploits caused no end of excitement. Mr. Singer met the young woman on route to New York, not long after she had left his employ and her recital of her affluence and happiness brought to her the notion of being selected as the model that was followed in the composition of "Miss Nobody from Starland." The joint work of Adams, Hough and Howard and Mitchell who are responsible for nearly all of Mr. Mort II. Singer's successes. The book and lyrics are particularly bright and crisp while the musical selections are said to be gems of melody.

WHEN HE MISSED HIS MOTHER

Bishop of Lincoln Regretted Inability to Make Frank Criticism of Poor Sermon.

Cannon Scott Holland, in an appreciation of the late bishop of Lincoln, mentions that Doctor King was a bachelor, and his mother lived with him till her death. He said once, after hearing a rasping sermon that irritated him: "It is at such a time that I miss my mother." He was asked why.

"Because directly we were through the door I should have turned to her and said: 'That was a beastly sermon,' and then it would have been out, and I should have been sorry to have said it and should have begun to apologize for the sermon and to love the preacher. Now the poison is in me all the week and I can't get rid of it."

Doctor King had a delicate and subtle wit. Once, said the canon, we had all been rather swept off our feet by the vivacity of certain Hampton lectures which were held out on rather well worn conventional lines.

The material was old, no doubt, but still it was surprising how well they went. How was it? What would King say of them? "Well, it is wonderful," he said, "how good an old pair of trousers will come out if you have laid them away for some time in a drawer."

He had hit it exactly. The trousers were green, for all their apparent sheen.

Devotion Extraordinary.

The Grand St. Bernard is one of the most desolate spots that the mind can conceive. Wild, rocky, bare, it seems too desolate for living things to inhabit. WILL HOLD MEETING TO ORGANIZE LEAGUE

Managers of Baseball Teams Will Meet Next Tuesday Evening to Complete Organization.

After a most enthusiastic discussion of the prospects of forming a Commercial baseball league in this city, the representatives of nine from various business houses in the city, who met last evening at the Y. M. C. A., decided to hold another meeting on next Tuesday evening, inviting the managers of other teams to be present and organize a league. At the regular meeting Tuesday it is planned to have present the managers of the teams last year and this year's officials. Four players sent representatives to the gathering last night which was held to find out the sentiment regarding the formation of a league. Manager Murphy was there for the Calor company; Manager Johnson and Captain Mills for the Lewis Kullback company; Secretary J. C. Kline and Physical Director George Wheeler for the Y. M. C. A.; and Manager Palmer and Captain Sennett for the Parker Pen company's team. The Rock River Woolen Mills propose to have a team in the field this season and sent word that they would like to enter the league. This requires five teams for the league and an effort will be made to have at least six teams in the league. The Janesville Machine company Wisconsin Carriage company and Gazette Printing company which were members of the league last year were not represented at the meeting.

Fancy Animals Sold.
Arthur Hall, a prominent farmer living near Beaver, sold and delivered Wednesday twenty head of cattle to Mr. Yabito who conducts a meat market in this city, for which he received $1,853.25. The herd were of the Polled Angus breed and were a fine lot.

NEW GRAVEL PIT IS NEARLY READY

Cement Shingle Company Expects to Be Able To Double Output By June 1.
Work on the new gravel pit near the sugar beet factory recently purchased by the Janesville Cement Shingle Company is progressing rapidly and it is hoped that the plant will be in full operation by the first of June. Work on the side tracks will be begun next week while a force of men have already partially stripped the ground in preparation for opening the pit. The bins and machinery are already in course of construction and will be finished before the end of this month. It is expected that the new pit will more than double the present output of the local concern and enable them to handle the orders which at the present time they are unable to fill.

FORMAL OPENING SATURDAY—FREE CAR-NATIONS.

Saturday will be formal opening day at the new Olympia Fruit House, on Milwaukee street bridge. The Olympia has been entirely remodeled and fitted with new wall cases and show cases. For opening day an exceptional line of home made candies will be displayed and a most complete menu at the fountain, and a car-nation given to each patron.

TWO COLLEGE WOMEN SUCCEED IN PURCHASING FOUR GIRLS AS PROOF OF WHITE SLAVERY.

New York, N. Y.—Through the efforts of two women, graduates of Smith and Adelphi colleges, the special grand jury under the direction of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Charles S. Whitman, has actually succeeded in purchasing on the open market in New York city four girls, ranging from 11 to 15 years, to be carried to Alaska for immoral purposes. They were sold as slaves without any reservation, according to the evidence in the possession of District Attorney Whitman.

When Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., assumed the position of foreman of the grand jury to investigate white slave traffic he expressed skepticism regarding the reports concerning the traffic, but agreed to his best in the case. District Attorney Whitman when he took his office also was doubtful concerning the reports. Both men have worked diligently, with the help of two college women, whose identity is withheld, and James H. Reynolds, who investigated the best trust, they now have evidence which proves beyond a question of doubt the existence of white slave traffic over the entire country.

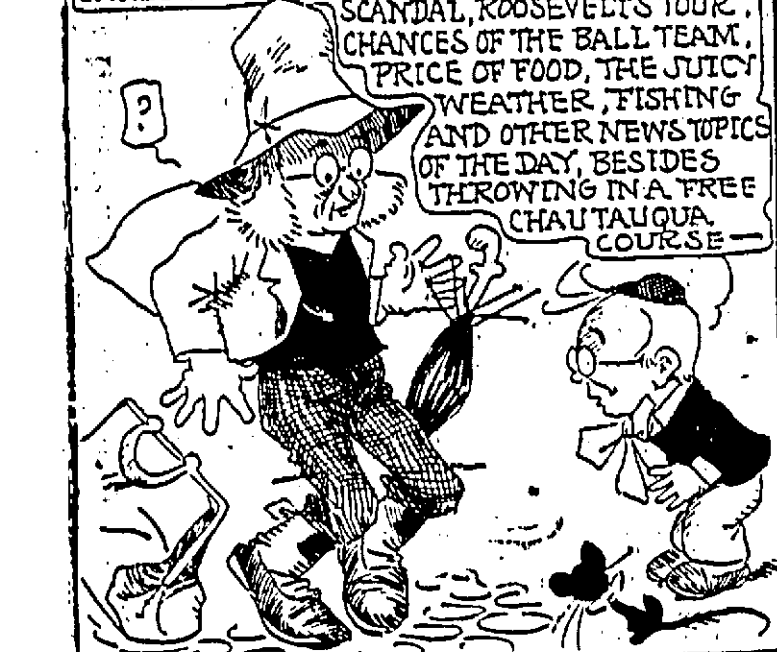

Three arrests have already been made in the case and others are planned within a short time. It is expected that the disclosures will involve men high in national politics.

The story of the experiences of the two women who gathered the evidence is most startling. To Mr. Reynolds was turned over the working out of the evidence and he secured the cooperation of the women, one of whom was sent to Seattle and the other to Juneau.

At these places the women went to work to become acquainted with the underworld. They made friends with scores of keepers of disorderly resorts, and finally the young woman in Alaska told some of her underworld acquaintances there that she was going to New York to get some "new girls."

That sounded good to the men and women of the disorderly resorts. New York seemed far off, but they all had friends here, and at the request of the young woman investigator several proprietors of resorts gave her letters to persons in New York where she was told that she could buy girls "at a reasonable figure."

Change in Literary Tastes. — New York publishers say that the novel has lost its taste for Indians and desperadoes. "It's not the Silly Sam stuff that the boys like nowadays," said one of them. "We have to keep a lot of writers at work here changing the old stories around to fit new wants. They put in aeroplanes instead of pluto ponies and have the hero toss the villain off a skyscraper instead of from a cliff. Many novels have to be kept up with the times just the same as everything else in this town. But in the country we can't sell the old standbys just as we always did." — New York Sun.

A Gentleman and Boots. — The "first gentleman in Europe" got the very worst definition of the gentleman from his valet when driving down to Brighton. The prince regent was arguing about the gentleman, and finally turned to his valet. And the valet replied that a gentleman was one who did not clean his own boots. It was a dunkey's reply. One likes better the demand of the duke of Wellington. "Give me men who can sleep in their boots."

Joint social of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. will be held Friday evening, May 13th, at G. A. R. hall. A good program and social time is anticipated and all are invited.

A SLIPPERY SCOUNDREL

By C. L. POINEER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The city's moral health being excellent, the sergeant at the desk had nothing to do. Unemployed people are inclined to be gregarious, and the sergeant talked a stream.

The slickest pair, he said, I ever came across were Darby and Williams. They used to play confidence games together, and they did them so naturally that they could take in a police inspector as easily as a countryman. Darby used to do the work, while Williams would play confederate. We of the police were on to them, but when we got them the difficulty was to prove anything against them.

Their villainies became so frequent that we determined to lay a trap for them. We started a farmer down among their Moorings, and, as we expected, he fell foul of them. They took a marked ten dollar bill from him—at least, Darby did—but managed to get rid of it before we could catch him. Nevertheless we had a strong case if we could prove his record.

On the day of the trial, just as we were filling up the last two or three men on the jury, a gentleman of evident respectability appeared and said he had been summoned to serve. He would like, if he must serve, to do so at once since he was expected to attend the funeral of a near relative within a few hours. The judge, glad to get such a man on jury duty, closed matters up. Mr. Worthington—that was the gentleman's name—being the last man chosen.

We knew that Darby had served a term at the penitentiary and that one of the physical characteristics noted on his records was that his left hand, "Agnes," had been tattooed on his right forearm. We brought our farmer to tell his story as to how he had been lured, but Darby, who had a way of changing his expression, refused the witness, and he wouldn't swear that he was the rascal. But if we could prove that the man who had swindled him was Darby we were sure of a conviction.

The prisoner was instructed to take off his coat and roll up his sleeve on his right arm. He did so, and we were disappointed at not seeing a tattoo. Fearing we had been misled, we had the left arm, he was ordered to roll up his left sleeve. There were no letters on that arm either. Thus far he had fooled us. In some way he had got rid of the tattoo. The next step was to prove, if possible, that the man had been tattooed. A medical expert was called in, who applied strong friction to the prisoner's arm. This had the effect of bringing out white lines with a slight bluish tint. These lines were letters and spelled the word "Agnes."

Having brought circumstantial evidence, though it was weak, to prove that the prisoner was the man who had swindled the farmer, this proof that he was an ex-convict made a case so strong against Darby that he did not doubt that we would get rid of his pranks for at least the period of another term in state prison. Our only regret was that we couldn't send his partner, Williams, with him. But Williams had given us the slip, and though we sought for him everywhere, we couldn't find him. "You see, we had evidence connecting him with Darby that we had never had before, and, having the deadwood on one of them, we would have no difficulty of convicting the other."

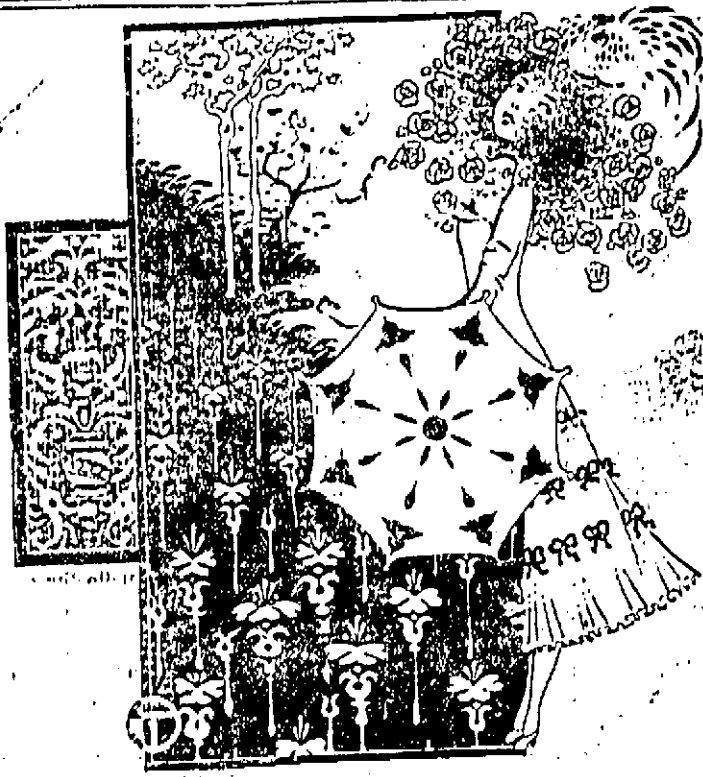

The judge virtually gave the jury instructions to convict Darby, and some of us expected they would do it without leaving their seats. The foreman held a brief consultation with the other eleven before retiring, but there seemed to be opposition somewhere among them—we couldn't tell where—to bringing in a verdict that way, and they got up and filed out of the courtroom.

I waited around for half an hour to make sure that we'd got Mr. Darby where we wanted him, but the jury didn't come back. Then I waited another half hour, feeling certain that it wouldn't require more than an hour to settle the case of a man who had been proved to be such an arrant rascal, but sixty minutes didn't serve the purpose. I felt to thinking of Mr. Worthington, the gentleman who expected to get through in time to attend the funeral of his relative. The delay must be very aggravating to him. Indeed, it was now past the time for the funeral—that is, judging from what he had said about it.

Well, I waited till dark. Then, being hungry, I took more interest in my supper than the conviction of Darby and went home to get something to eat. After supper I went back to the courtroom. The jury was still out. At 10 o'clock the foreman sent word to the judge that they couldn't agree. The judge sent back word that they must agree. At midnight he sent in again to ask what was the prospect of a verdict, and they assured him that owing to the obstinacy of one man there was no hope of a verdict except for an acquittal. He sent back an order to settle the matter one way or the other. Then they filed in and brought in a verdict of acquittal.

And who was the obstinate jurymen? It was Mr. Worthington, the man who had come in at the last moment, and was in a hurry to attend a funeral. And who was Worthington? He turned out to be none other than that slippery scoundrel Williams in disguise.

A LAMENT.

Now summer hats and summer frocks Absorb the female breast,
And wives become a grievance, for
They have to be dressed.

The Cormorant at Work. — How a cormorant dives for sea trout and gets them is told by a writer: "I had the cormorant under observation only for the space of five minutes, and during that short period it had captured four sea trout, all of considerable size. After being under water for a few seconds the bird would reappear with a sea trout wriggling in its bill; but in spite of the victim's desperate efforts to escape it was daintily swallowed, and after a few gulping operations."

No Power in Itself. — The bell never rings itself; unless some one handles or moves it, it is dumb. — Plautus.

Collection May Be Scattered. — The Italian government has refused—for financial reasons—it is said, to purchase the Paganini collection, which is now the property of the granddaughter of the great violinist. "Unless some appreciative person comes to this rescue, buys and keeps it intact," says a letter from Florence, "the valuable articles will be sold in this city at public auction. There are medals, decorations and valuable pieces of jewelry which were given to Niccolò Paganini by admirers; his bow, many instruments and a large collection of musical manuscripts. Does it not show a lack of patriotism on the part of his country to allow these treasures to be scattered?" — New York Tribune.

Paricide in China.

The Peking Gazette of recent date gives two receipts in connection with criminals who "on account of madness" have killed their father and grandfather, respectively. These words are always added in such cases, for the crime of paricide is so heinous that strictly speaking the whole population of the city is responsible; the city walls have to be razed and a new altar must be found elsewhere. In Szechuan province there is a deserted city, visible to travelers from the river, where this law was once strictly carried out.

Value of Aluminum.

Electricity, which places the day atoms of aluminum from the ore deposits, has made the metal possible to the commercial world; and in return aluminum now ranks next to copper as the most desirable metal for electrical machinery.

THE THEATER

The pictorial side of "The Great Divide," in which a special company is to appear at the Myers Theatre next Tuesday, May 17, is said to be strikingly fascinating. The first two scenes are full of the atmosphere and color of the boundless West, pervaded by the spirit of mountains and plains. The first act, setting represents a cabin on a cactus ranch in Southern Arizona. The second act shows "The Roof of the World," a wild, unexplored spot at the top of the Rockies. Here on the great Continental Divide is fought out the conflict between the hero and the heroine—his, typifying the unfettered, lawless freedom of the mountain and desert, she, reflecting the Puritan ideal of her New England home. The grandeur of the scenes gives an almost epic background to this struggle of contrasted national temperaments of East and West. Stephen Elbert's abode in the Cordilleras overlooks a yawning canyon and, spread before it is an impressive vista of vast distances across the mountain tops. It was just such a scene as this viewed in all its gorgeous western coloring from moon to sunset, that inspired the imagination of William Vaughn Moody to write this drama of "The Great Divide," which was instantly hailed upon its presentation in New York City as "the great American play" every one has been praying for. Mr. Moody is a college professor, a teacher of literature in the University of Chicago, and has been writing poetic dramas along classical Greek lines, but the voice of the West spoke to him one summer day on the top of the Continental Divide and he brought back its utterances to the East and West, the North and South, in the most notable drama of the past half century.

"A BROOM FOR THE STOMACH"

So the French Call Parsley—Pumpkin and Apple Both Rich in Phosphorus.

The French have a saying that "parsley is a broom to sweep the stomach." Lettuce is a nerve food. Radishes build the lungs and are rich in phosphorus, also in iron.

Horseradish contains a higher percentage of sulphur than all the other vegetable roots, spinach ranking next in value. Spinach also contains a large percentage of iron.

A mayonnaise dressing with lettuce is especially desirable for thin people, but for the over plump French dressing is to be recommended. The action of vinegar on the digestive organs, however, is not to be considered. The acid of lemon juice is preferable.

While apples are a most excellent fruit for brain building, which phosphorus aids in, the humble pumpkin, dedicated to the uses of pie and Jack o' lanterns, holds the prize. Pumpkin rates 2.79 in phosphorus, while apple is but .45.

When in search of this special element take up a pumpkin diet. But as winter squash would stand the same analysis, it can be used as a vegetable in many varieties and thus the needed phosphorus supplied. Cucumbers rank next in phosphorus value to pumpkins, being 2.08.—Vegetarian Magazine.

Birds Easily Made Captives.

A bird expert has returned to Europe from the West Indies with over 200 captives. He boiled down tree sap into a thick, sticky mess, and put it on shrubs and branches at places where birds took food and drink. Once they grasped the sticky porches they were fast and could not fly away, says the expert. Some were caught by tying to a string large grains which birds swallowed, and there they were. Among the captives are starlings, finches, pigeons, doves, herons and canaries.

Long-Lived Paupers.

There is an inmate in the Colchester workhouse, England, who is 98 years of age, one who is 92, 21 between 80 and 90, and 53 between 70 and 80.

If you at all interested in buying or renting real estate or houses, read the Want Ad page every day.

Child's Fiendish Temper.
"Death from exhaustion due to burns caused by being pushed into the fire by her younger brother," was the verdict at a Crews (Eng.) inquest on the body of five-year-old Violet Capper. The mother left a number of little children playing in the yard, with instructions not to go into the house. Scarcely had she turned her back when Frank, aged two, got into the house, and Violet, who followed to bring him out, was pushed into the fire by him. The mother said Frank had a very nasty temper, and since the occurrence had attempted to push one of the other children into the fire. The coroner said it seemed almost incredible. The child was too young to be criminally charged.

Thackeray's Correction.
A distinguished foreigner visiting Epsom Downs in Thackeray's company noticed, St. James' Budget affirms, many men dressed as sailors who were not, to native and experienced eyes, the real article. "Ah," said the visitor, "these are, I suppose, what you call your British tars?" "Oh, no," replied Thackeray. "Only Epsom salts."

Independent and Bossy.
Our idea of being important and independent is being able to boss people around and justify them the way the van men do with the people they're working for.

MAP SHOWING COURSE TO BE TRAVERSED BY LOUIS PAULHAN, THE LATEST PICTURE OF HIS AIRSHIP AND A CHARACTERISTIC PHOTOGRAPH OF THE AVIATOR HIMSELF.

THE KNAVE OF SPADES

By LOUISE D. CUMMINGS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Mary O'Rourke was a typical Irish girl—light hair with a tinge of red in it and a complexion like a ripe peach. Mary lived in stirring times, when the people were struggling to be free from what they deemed the tyranny of the British sovereign.

Of one of these adherents she had heard a great deal, but had never seen him. Dennis Shea was a young rebel taking an active part in the efforts to throw off British supremacy and was rapidly becoming a leader. The government was watching for some overt act on his part that would afford an excuse for his arrest and condemnation for treason. But of this the young patriot knew nothing. A gifted orator, he continued to speak to his countrymen of Ireland's wrongs.

Mary lived in a house with an English family who were very bitter against the Irish patriots. Donald Trevor, the head of the family, was a puny, red-faced, rotund man—indeed, a veritable John Bull, who didn't count his opinions. One evening when the mail coach stopped at the town a passenger alighted and asked for the house of Donald Trevor. It was pointed out to him, and, with his traveling bag, he went to it and knocked. Mary opened the door, and the stranger said that he had been recommended to the house to stop, since Mr. Trevor was a staunch supporter of the king. Trevor took him in, gave him the best chamber in the house.

This especial treatment of the stranger made Mary curious to know who he was. The best way to learn was to listen when Trevor and he were talking together. This was not very practicable, but Mary kept her ears open when near to the two men and knew they were excitedly talking about measures to hold the Irish in check. Then she caught the name Shea. This induced her to take the chance of being discovered eavesdropping by remaining behind a screen when she was supposed to have left the room. The two men were excitedly discussing the Irish cause, and she heard the stranger say:

"I have in my bag the king's warrant for his arrest. He will be tried at the next assizes, and within a month after that he will swing."

This was quite enough for Mary. She went to the stranger's room, opened his bag, took out a parchment, unfolded it and saw the name Dennis Shea engrossed in large letters. Taking it under her apron string, she closed the bag and, taking the warrant to her own room, touched a match to it and burned it.

There is in the Irish people a love for a joke which shows itself in the most serious moments. Seeing a pack of playing cards on a table, Mary took them up and, placing the knave of spades as the top card, she wrote on it, "I'm digging your grave." Then she went back to the stranger's room and placed the cards in the bag where she had found the warrant.

This happened on the morning of the stranger's departure, and he did not open his bag again till he arrived at the place where he had been told he would find Shea. The rebel was to speak that evening in the town square, and shortly before the meeting the king's messenger opened his bag to take out his warrant. In its place was the knave of spades lying at him with the words Mary had written below.

Here was a pretty pass. The Britisher was obliged to leave the Irish rebel to talk his "treason" without interference. There was no use to hunt for his missing warrant, for he had no idea where he had lost it, and he did not doubt that some sympathizer with the Irish cause had destroyed it. He must get another warrant. But a journey to England in those days and return was not the simple matter it is today. One must go to the coast over muddy roads by the slow coaches of that period, wait for a vessel to take him across the Irish channel and nearly cross England on a similar coach journey to London. Then he must pass over the same route in return.

There was nothing for the messenger but this long trip, but with true English persistence he started on his quest. The next day Dennis Shea received a call from a young woman who was a stranger to him. She was Mary O'Rourke.

"What can I do for you?" asked Shea.

"Go into hiding," she said.

"Why?"

Mary told the story of the stranger who had stopped at the house where she lived and what she had learned about the warrant. She had got this far in her story when Shea broke in:

"And you have come to warn me?"

"There's no hurry for you to be part of it with your friends," she said.

"Why not?"

"I stole the warrant, burned it and put a pack of cards in its place with the knave of spades uppermost, so that when he opened his bag he'd see it swirlin' at him."

"This was too much for Shea. He sprang for Mary, took her in his arms and covered her face with kisses."

Mary made no protest.

When the king's messenger reached London he found that the king had died during his absence, and the new sovereign made a change in the Irish policy.

Mary became Mrs. Shea.

CURIOS EFFECTS OF SCENTS

Penetrating Odors Have Been Known to Induce Unconsciousness and Even Death.

There is no evidence to support the theory that the smell of narcissus may cause influenza. But many strange cases are on record regarding the effects of the smell of flowers.

"A foreign officer," said a medical man, "one night went to sleep with a number of bunches of oleander—an evergreen shrub with red and white flowers—in his bedroom. In the morning he was found dead. The pungent smell of the oleander had asphyxiated him."

"Less serious is the case of a doctor who, after sitting for some time in a room where there were several bowls of jessamine, became exceedingly giddy. He removed the flowers, whereupon he was himself again at once."

"A number of oranges in a room has been known to make a man unconscious. I know also of the case of a man who, going to sleep in a storeroom full of apricots, was discovered next day in an unconscious condition, and lay for some time in peril of his life."

Strength of Love.
Love feels no burden, thinks nothing of trouble, attempts what is above its strength, pleads no excuse of impossibility; for it thinks all things lawful for itself, and all things possible. It is, therefore, able to undertake all things, and it completes many things, and warrants them to take effect, where he who does not love would faint and lie down.—Thomas a Kempis.

The Boss of the Place.
"Yes," said the determined man, "when that waiter treated the smallness of my tip I took the case to the proprietor of the restaurant."
"And what did the proprietor do?"
"He gave the waiter some money out of his own pocket and apologized to him for chafing such a customer."

Insult to Injury.
Burglar Bill (to wealthy grocer)—"Now, then, out of it, and do this little lot up into a parcel. I never was no hand at that kind of thing."—Comed Cuts.

And the Money Came Back.

When a Darby man sent a vest to be cleaned he forgot that in the inside pocket was a roll of notes amounting to $165. He made up his mind that the money was lost in some other way and marked it down as something of the past. When the vest came home the money was discovered.

Perhaps the owner has not yet decided whether the money was overlooked by the cleaner, whether it was returned by an honest man, or whether the cleaning of the vest was merely imaginary. That he got the money back is enough to know, yet it would be fair to the cleaner to give credit for not being curious to the extent of examining the pockets of garments sent to his shop, or else to hold that he is really an honest man, too modest to parade himself.—Wilmington (Del.) News.

Requirements of Tragedy.

The clearest and most succinct declaration of the dramatic unities was made by Boileau, when he laid down the law that a tragedy must show "one action in one day and in one place." It must deal with only a single story; and this obligation is the unity of action. It must never change the scene, missing all its episodes in a single spot; and this is the unity of place. And it must compact its successive situations into the space of 24 hours, into a single day, and this is the unity of time.—Atlantic.

Plant by Moon's Phases.

Seventy-five per cent. of the farmers of the United States plant their crops according to the moon's phases, but scientific investigation shows that potatoes planted in the "dark" of the moon are no better than others.

Rehberg's Values Are Unequaled--Note These Specials for Men and Women

There is one particular feature of Rehberg's specials—you know they are not questionable goods. Our goods are up-to-minute styles, and up-to-the-minute qualities. Every item is taken from our regular lines and the reductions offer inducements for buying NOW that are unapproachable.

SPECIALS IN CLOTHING

At this price we include in a sweeping reduction every suit in our stock priced up to $14.00. These clothes are for young men who want snap and ginger in their clothes, who want the styles of this season at their best, yet at prices moderate. In the lot are grays, tans, mixtures, blues, olives; broad shoulders, long lapels, swell suits.

We also include at $11.00 a lot of suits which we bought a few weeks ago at a reduced price. This lot of suits embody the best features of the season and are garments that ordinarily would retail as high as $15.00. $11.00 never bought better suits.

Suits that originally sold as high as $18.00, are now placed on sale at one price, $14.50. This includes the handsome grays, blue serges, browns, olives, and blacks, the pick of the classiest styles for spring and summer wear. The broad shoulders with long lapels and dip fronts are novel features this season, and they are all represented in this great lot. Such famous clothes as Viking are included at this low price, $14.50, and it's the biggest suit bargain thus far this season.

Hirsch Wickwire, Sophomore, Viking Clothes

Each representing a specialized line for men with defined tastes. The Hirsch-Wickwire equal custom made clothes at prices fully a third less. The Sophomore are the classiest clothes young men and business men can find; the Viking line for the younger chap, who wants fashion's latest dictates at moderate prices. Come in, your tastes will be satisfied here, no matter what they require. Clever clothes $16.50 to $30.00.

Ladies' Oxfords, Pumps & Ties, $3 Values at $2.40

IF YOU HAVEN'T TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF OUR SPECIAL COME IN TOMORROW AND SEE THEM. The line is comprehensive in its style range, including one, two and three strap pumps, two, three and four eyelet ties, and some very clever novelties in the form of instep strap pump and one eyelet tie combined. This last number is beautiful in its lines and offers a variation from the prevailing styles.

The leathers are patent, dull kid and gun metal, including also a number of tans. Tans are being shown in the east for this summer wear and it is expected that they will be good again.

Queen Quality and Selby Oxfords at $3.00 and $3.50, in the season's smartest styles. These two lines are making new friends daily, because they excel in fitting quality and in grace of lines. You will like them better than all others. See our complete spring showing.

Kneeland Oxfords Are Incomparable

There is no $4.00 shoe for men that can compare with Kneeland in VALUE at the price. There are the custom lines, modeled from the modish lasts, the very best leathers obtainable, and a perfect fit in a Kneeland oxford. See the Arcade last for summer. It's the HIT, $4.00.

BOSTONIAN SHOES for young men in clever lasts and new styles, in tans, patent, gun metal and the new gray oxfords. Some of the best for the season are the two eyelet sailor tie, a semi-pump, two button sailor oxford, the Speed last, the Arcade and others at $3.50

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

I READ in a newspaper the other day of the establishment of a "school of matrimony" which was to have courses in dressmaking and millinery, in domestic science and in the nursing and care of children.

I set out at once to visit this school, and found it, after all, merely a fragment of the editorial writer's active brain.

I wish it had not been.

I wish there might be such a school publicly maintained in every city in the United States, and that a year or two at it might be considered an indispensable part of the middle class girl's education as her high school course.

We say most emphatically that no man has a right to marry unless he can provide a suitable home for the girl.

Why has a girl any more right to marry when she is incapable of running the suitable home after he provides it?

Of course a girl might learn cooking and sewing, and all the other things that pertain to her position of homemaker, right in her own home—and some girls do—but the majority of girls, left to learn the art of homemaking in this casual way, apt to put as much study and concentration upon it as if they were studying it in a regular school?

Besides, unless the mother is an exceptional housekeeper, it is unlikely that she would know much about each branch of domestic science as the experts who would be hired to teach them.

Now I know there are a good many people who are going to say that the new fangled ideas that these experts will teach our girls are all nonsense and that the young girl will do much better to learn the art of housekeeping just as her mother and grandmother know it.

Isn't that rather slighted?

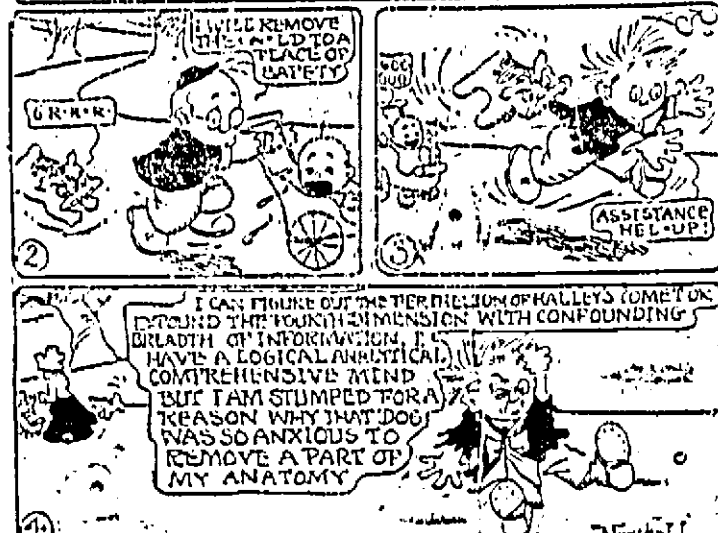

Are't we altogether too willing to regard the science of housekeeping as something that can be left at a standstill while all the other sciences in the world progress?

My ideal school would have courses in staple, economical cooking, making a specialty of the use of left-overs and the study of scientific food values, in plain sewing, mending and altering, in economical and intelligent buying, not only of provisions but also of materials and advanced courses for those who wished them in hatmaking, embroidery and dressmaking.

There are, of course, in some large cities, industrial schools where these things are taught, but in many, and only a small proportion of the girls even in these cities attend the industrial high schools.

I believe that such a school should be established in every city and town in the United States and that a one year course in it should be made a requirement for a high school diploma for a girl, and graduate courses should be open to those who had time for them.

Why could not the study of the need of such a school and the possibility of having it established in your community be a good thing for the woman's club to which you belong?

EPICURUS TO ANITA.

I tried to chime a fitting rhyme
Now this, you know, as techniques go With your sweet name, Anita
Is not of rhyme the nearest,
But not a sound a hearing found Besides for you it wouldn't do—
But "sweetest," "sweetest," "sweetest."
No, nothing less than "sweetest."

The Comet's Tail.

The tail of a comet is composed of gas, existing in a highly rarefied condition. Little particles of electricity called corpuscles, or ions, are being constantly given off at enormous speed by the sun. Each meteorite in the comet's head strikes one of the molecules of gas in the comet's atmosphere, it carries it off with it to form the tail. The electrical charge makes the gas luminous, and it is by this light, and not by reflected sunlight, that the tail is made visible to us. A comet's tail, therefore, seems to be merely a very extended aurora.

Famous New York Trees.

In front of Columbia university library are two English yews which were brought from England in 1800 and set out in St. John's Park. Later they were removed to the Elgin botanical garden at Fifth Street, which were then a part of Columbia. In 1837 the trees were transplanted to Morrisville Heights. On the upper part of the island near Spuyten Duyvil stands the largest tulip tree on Manhattan. It has a diameter of 62 feet. Near Fordham square in the Bronx is the stenton willow, said to be 300 years old, and at the foot of Cypress avenue are the two largest cypresses in the country. They stand on land once a part of the Governor Morris estate.—New York Sun.

UMBRELLAS AND BELIEFS.

By MARY HUSSELL.

An umbrella in a driving rain is like some people's religion. It looks at the edges and lets in all sorts of cold and damp as you turn the corners.

Some umbrellas are made of silk—that is the religion which is too good for daily use, but is lovely in the sunshine to give tone to a toilet.

Then there is the umbrella of cotton and linen mixed. It looks well and keeps off the rain well, and is warranted not to turn brown side out at a critical moment. Of course a little rain may get under the edge in a severe wind, but its a pretty useful and generous shelter. It is easy to pick out the religious that it represents.

Then there is the leaky umbrella—the old cotton that faded and torn—and the umbrella which has been borrowed when the owner was not looking—they are all types of the so-called religious of some people.

Sometimes there comes along a man or woman suitably clad with garments that will stand the wet and that cannot be hurt. They march straight and glad in the rain or shine and are happy in themselves and bestow happiness by their very presence. That is the real thing—the real true belief which is safe and sure at all times and in all kinds of storms.

A man that needs the protection of religion as an outside garment needs watching. The woman that puts up a stylish affair for effect is unworthy.

There are plenty of people who are honest in their self-deception. They think they have found the true path to real religion, when they have never thought once for themselves. To the men and women who are good and kind, and are honest and yet do not know God, is a sorrowful thing to do.

The trouble with too many is that they have only borrowed an umbrella. They are not responsible as to its material. If it is silk, that some else selected, then they carry silk, but cotton pleases them just as well. It was good for someone else and so is good for them.

That is all wrong. To know real good we must think. How many people do you know who really think? They are strangely few.

To do good you must be good. To be good you must not apply your religious beliefs to your neighbor, but to yourself. The man who promises to love his neighbor as himself and then takes an advantage of that neighbor in a business deal fails to apply the thing he thinks he believes.

The woman who reverently reads "and the greatest of these is charity," and believes she is charitable and yet flings the stone of a careless word of scandal, is a stranger to the charity—He meant loving. And where love is there happiness abides and the atmosphere of true religion is breathed as the air about us.

The Optimist's Corner

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE P. BUTLER, A.M., M.D.

Occupation for children means happiness; the little ones who have nothing to do are inevitably fretful and mischievous, so it behooves mothers to find suitable and varied employment for their young folks. A favorite pursuit becomes monotonous if indulged in too long, and the guiding spirit of the nursery must rack her brains for a change of occupation when the children are confined to the house by bad weather.

Silver paper, which comes from chocolate, packets of tobacco, and elsewhere, is generally prized, though the little ones don't know what to do with it. If a tiny ball is formed of the first piece, and other portions are added, snowball fashion, a very young child can make for itself a capital ball. Spills of paper, neatly folded, for father to light his cigar are another source of delight, and the boy or girl making these has the additional pleasure of knowing it is love's labor.

It is always advisable to inculcate the lesson of good nature and unselfishness when the children set to work. Let the older ones paint pictures and fill scrapbooks for the hospitals, whilst the wee ones can tear up paper as a stuffing for simple charity pillows.

Well-to-do little people are so lovingly and thoughtfully treated now-a-days that they are in danger of thinking that everything is theirs by right, and it is all important to teach them to share their playthings readily and cheerfully, and to be ready to give up to others less fortunate than themselves.

A Diamond Ring

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.

Peter Holt had been born of farmer folks. He had worked on a farm all his life and at the age of forty was still a farmer's hired man. Peter was not stupid, but he was slow. He had little education, but he got around to things if given time. Being slow and good tempered and without argument, Peter was taken by some folks as weak in the top story.

One day Peter had to make a journey by rail. It was his first ride on the cars, but he made no mistakes. He gave the conductor his ticket, hung on to his seat with both hands, and whenever the train stopped at a station he stepped out of it. It tickled him to find that he could catch on so easily. By and by he had a seat mate. It was a sorrowful young man, who kept one eye on the conductor and wept with the other. His mother, who lived in Chicago, was dying, and he had no money to go to her and receive her dying blessing.

As the young man continued to weep he aroused Peter's sympathies, and he finally got around to say so. Then the young man explained that there was a way, and one way only, open for him to reach Chicago before the spirit of his dear mother took its flight. He had a diamond ring with him—one that had been presented to him by Mr. Rockefeller for not climbing Mount McKinley and tearing his clothes. It was a sovereign that he hated to part with, but when a young man's mother is dying what would you have? He showed the jewel, but showed it very carefully. It was wrapped in seven folds of tissue paper. The diamond itself was not quite as large as a walnut, but those things cannot always be regulated to within a carat or two. The value was $300. Under the circumstances he would part with it for $25. The sacrifice of $275 showed how he loved his mother—how anxious he was to press her wrinkled hand for the last time.

Peter Holt had $25 and a little more. The money went out of his pocket, and the ring went in, and for an hour he trembled for fear the young man would back out.

As a farmer's hired man Peter was accustomed to an old way, and most anything was considered good enough for him. When he returned with that ring he learned more of human nature in ten minutes than in all his life before. A special supper was placed before him, and he was told that he needn't milk the cows that night.

Very soon after breakfast the farmer's wife began smiling at Peter. She also smiled words of flattery. She also hinted that as he had no use for a diamond ring he should let it go. It would be something for her to remember him as long as she lived. Peter said he'd think it over.

The farmer had a daughter named Bebeey. That was the reason she called herself Adele. Peter had tried to fall in love with her, but she had informed him that the Gulf between them was as wide as the Atlantic ocean. Now she showed a disposition to narrow the Gulf to the width of the Erie canal.

Next day the farmer took Peter out to the barn and told him he was such a driver of work that his wages must be raised. He also said that Peter was sharper than a razor and that there wasn't a lightning rod man in the state who could hold a candle to him. He had had forty hired men in his time, but never one like Peter Holt. Then he wound up by offering Peter a three dollar six months' time in which to make up his mind. There was a Widow Glenn on the next farm who he had thought to court. When he began to tell of his love he was hustled out of doors. As he was going the widow flung after him:

"Why, Pete Holt, you don't know enough to come in when it rains. Do you think I'm going to the idiot asylum for a husband?"

A week after the diamond ring was brought home the widow called to Peter over the fence to come down that evening and pop her some corn and see what was the matter with one of her hens. Peter went. His hair, ears and nose were pruned; it was predicted that he would run for office some day; it was remarked that his wife, when he came to get one, would be a proud woman. Other remarks were remarked, and poor Peter was about to declare his love again when she asked for the ring as a souvenir to enable the widow to remember that she was forty years old that day. She would take it as one of the nicest, sweetest things ever done for her. Pete didn't leave the ring. He wanted time to think about it.

Then the owner of the next farm down the road wanted to hire Peter away from his employer. He had a wife and three daughters and all wanted that ring. None of them got it. Then it was suggested that he present it to a church and let it be raffled for the benefit of the heathen. Peter didn't fall for it. He was still hanging on and enjoying the situation when a wife fence man came along and pronounced the diamond nothing but a piece of glass. It was taken to town, and the jeweler said the same thing. "Villain! Deceiver! Swindler! Get out of this!" shouted the farmer who employed Peter.

"Oh, you rascal, but it's prison for you!" cried the Widow Glenn. And poor Peter Holt fled in the night and took his ring with him.

VANILLA BEANS.

The making of vanilla extract is not a complicated process but it does call for expert knowledge of material. Vanilla beans come in all grades, from the worthless to the best. The finest beans are grown and cured in Mexico.
 Their value is about double that of pure sugar. Every conceivable device is used to adulterate and deceive the public into buying worthless vanilla.
 Never buy a bottle labeled compound or modified extract or one on which the name vanilla is misapplied. The standard strength of a drug store extract is ten per cent, but the laws of Wisconsin allow peddlars and canvassers to sell three per cent extract and label it Pure Vanilla.
 The pure food guarantee has nothing to do with the quality. Pure Vanilla is pure vanilla whether made from worthless beans or beans worth double their weight in silver. The worth of the beans is in their fine flavor.
 Mr. Menzies, our graduate Pharmaceut and Chemist, makes our vanilla from the finest beans. It is double strength, absolutely pure, of the finest flavor, aged for at least four years and sold at 15c per ounce, 2 ounces 25c. We ask you to buy a bottle today. Use enough extract in your next frosting or cream, learn its rich flavor and strength. We know you will always be our customer. Badger Drug

Laugh Makers Tonic-Makers.

Blessed are the laugh makers. Their bits of humor are like rays of sunshine on our paths and brighten our ways. They put us on better terms with ourselves and with the world.
 Lincoln was a humorist and this factility helped him wonderfully in his trying official life. His amusing stories usually carried a little moral which was clearly apparent through the covering of fun. The moral is lacking in many of the laughable tales of the day, yet they serve a good purpose in leaving us in a pleasant frame of mind. They quicken our spirits and the smiles they produce are passed along to the friends we meet later. It has been truly said that it of a smile or the ultimate beneficial effect of a pleasant thought.—Chris-

STREET PAVEMENT ISORDERED BY COUNCIL

Plans Being Drawn Up for Improvement of Four Blocks of Main Thoroughfare in Monroe.
 (Special to the Gazette.)
 Monroe, Wis., May 13.—The street committee are drawing up plans for four blocks of pavement, from the square to George street. It is probable that the cost of the improvement of this street will be about $10,000. The owners of the abutting property and the city. The city will take care of the intersections, the excess pavement over thirty feet and also help toward paying the cost of the balance.
 The street which is to be improved is one of the main thoroughfares of the city, and one which has long been in need of repair.
 The street committee has also been directed to prepare plans for the improvement of the square, one for a 30-foot pavement, one for a 40-foot pavement, and a third for the entire pavement. The committee are in favor of brick pavement with concrete foundation and sand fill.

MILTON COLLEGE TORETAIN $7,000 GIFT

Tendered by Charles Badger in 1905
 —Decision in Its Favor at Grand Island, Nebraska.

Hogler in Probate Court at Grand Island, Nebraska, who was attorney for some litigation involving the retention of a $7,000 gift from Charles Badger, deceased, received a telegram from Grand Island, Nebraska, late yesterday afternoon to the effect that District Judge Paul had rendered a decision in favor of the Rock convention of learning. As the case was largely within the discretion of the trial judge, it is not expected that the case will be carried on appeal to a higher tribunal.

In 1905 Mr. Badger, who kept a store at Milton for many years, sold 160 acres of land in Valley county, Nebraska, and took in return a mortgage for $7,000. To provide for himself and his second wife in their old age and at the same time do something for Milton College, he turned the mortgage over to the college authorities with the stipulation that they pay to him annually during his lifetime a sum equivalent to six per cent interest on the mortgage.

This contract was made in May, 1905, and in December of the same year Mr. Badger died. In April, 1907, his daughter, Mrs. Holaday, who lives at Kansas City, commenced an action to have the mortgage declared her property, claiming that prior to turning it over to the college her father had conveyed it to her in instrument that had never been recorded. Only vague and conflicting testimony on this point was introduced by the plaintiff when the case was tried last June but the long delay in submitting a decision led the college people to apprehend that the court might find against them in the face of the evidence.

 While the warehouse season is drawing to a close with many firms there is business in sight for work that will expand well into the summer.
 The weather of the week has continued too cool to promote much growth of the plant beds and yet growers insist the late frosts have accomplished but little injury and the prospects generally fully up to other years of this date.
 The shipments out of storage reach 200 cases and 3 cars from this market to all points for the week past and 15 cars in for warehouse handling.

TRUSTEES SEEK A HOME FOR MOOSE
 Janesville Lodge #1 Present Has An Option on Building at 14 North Main Street.
 Janesville Lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose is still looking for a permanent home. The organization at present has an option on the vacant building at 14 N. Main St., where the Gazette office was formerly located, the advisability of purchasing this property was discussed at a meeting held last evening. The matter was finally left in the hands of the trustees, Walter Taylor, J. W. Van Buren, and Robert A. H. Fryer, with instructions to report at the regular meeting to be held next Thursday evening.

FOOD FOR MEMORY.
 The Kind that Builds up the Brain
 It is hard to believe that certain kinds of food will strengthen the memory, and yet, upon the condition of the brain depends the character of the mind, and its power to remember and to exert itself in various ways, and a healthy brain can only be maintained by well selected food.
 Now we know that daily use of the brain uses up certain parts that are thrown out through the pores to the outer surface of the skin. This waste is natural and must be made up from food.
 Grape-Nuts food was made especially to rebuild the brain and nerve centers. An experience in Chicago will illustrate:
 "I had a terrible case of gastritis;
 my stomach refused everything in the way of food until I got hold of Grape-Nuts. It was perfectly wonderful and marvelous to see the difference—I began to improve at once.
 "I weighed myself about that time and found that I had 118 pounds to my credit. I gained in weight, strength and health steadily and rapidly, and now weigh 160 pounds and am strong and in better health than ever in my life.
 "I have lately had a seven months' course of instruction in vocal music, and have memorized 68 songs and several of the accompaniments besides several piano pieces. When I started it seemed difficult to memorize one, but my memory has been growing better every day and I now find it easy to commit to memory without difficulty.
 "I have taken no medicine, but my steady diet of Grape-Nuts food has given me strength, health and memory."

FLIRTING PRINCESS
 PROVES ATTRACTIVE
 Mort Singer's Musical Offering Delighted Large Audience at Myers Theatre Last Evening.
 When a Janesville audience really wakes up and shows its appreciation of a good musical attraction it turns on mass and fills the theatre in sitting upon benches after opera. On the flirting Princesses produced this evening at the Myers theatre last evening, and for nearly three hours, John Rasmussen, Knox Wilson, Vera Michelena, Adele Rowland, Lydia Dixon and Harry Pizer kept the audience convulsed with laughter by their clever work.
 The flirting Princesses has no plot worthy of mention to carry along the story or excuse for the appearance of the handsome, musical choruses the specialties introduced by the principles, but is replete with catchy music, staged to perfection and its cast is made up of songsters of unusual quality. Its chorus is perfectly drilled, handsomely gowned and the costumes of the flirters, while sometimes a bit elaborate, appropriate for the intricate parts they play.
 John Rasmussen, one of the Prince of Milton fame, as Rapt Hanes, greeted old friends in his audience as did Knox Wilson, who is remembered as April Fool in the Land of Nod and kept his audience convulsed in his own character of Periwinkle Dudley.
 Harry Pizer, as Jack Stuart, is a new addition to Janesville audiences and proved an adept at changing his clothes and in eccentric dancing. Lydia Dixon as Araminta Hanes, was a fall for the jokes of the Rasmussen-Wilson-Pizer trio and proved acceptable. Rasmussen's jokes were always good, his reference to the Janesville Street Railway being built about the time of the Pyramids of Egypt, his song and dance sketch as done by Mayor Carle and his arrival home by the chimney route as Santa Claus with a beautiful "package" brought down the house.
 The two dances of the evening, the Vampire, by J. W. Smith and Vera Michelena and Smith and Adele Rowland in the Apache gyrations were excellent. It might be said that the Vampire dance was a bit too realistic, too gruesome but from point of beautiful execution it was superb. Vera Michelena as the Vampire had a most difficult role to sustain and was gracepersonified in the expression her part called for.
 Dainty Adele Rowland's part in the Apache dance with Smith was far more acceptable and Smith himself proved to be a dancer whose equal has never been seen upon the local stage. Miss Rowland has beauty, voice and grace and throughout the whole production delighted her audience. With Smith and the Apache dance she appeared at her best and repeated encores called them back again and again.
 Rasmussen made a clever between the acts speech in response to repeated encores and delighted in calling attention to the fact that his friend, Walter Jones was to appear in Janesville next week in "Miss Nobody from Starland." Jones, Rasmussen explained, had delighted him when as a boy he used to sit in the "heaven" on pen-nants and enjoy his performances.
 Among the musical numbers that will be remembered from the flirting Princesses will be "Calico," "My Jack-O'-Lantern," "I Rather Look At You Than Kiss Any Other Girl," and "The Best Kiss in San Francisco." The work of the chorus was exceptionally good, both in its singing, costumes and drilling. And if the principals nothing more can be asked to make the performance a success.

PAYNE DEFENDS TARIFF BILL.
 Author of Law Says Party Has Fulfilled Its Promise.
 Washington, May 13.—Bernard E.
 Payne, author of the tariff law which bears his name, entered into a vigorous defense of that measure in the house.
 He declared that the Republican party's pledge to revise the tariff downward had been fulfilled and that from whatever viewpoint you look at it the law shows a reduction in rates;
 there were some increases for which no apologies are made; they were necessary for the revenue; the commodities on which the rates were reduced represent ten times the value of the luxuries on which the rates were increased; it was a true downward revision, but the law has been misrepresented, he said, by politicians with campaign capital to make,
 and by tradesmen grasping for pelf.
 The high cost of living, he declared, is due to overproduction of gold, and is not common to the United States, but is consistently paralleled in Europe.

VOTE ON RAIL BILL IN SIGHT.
 Agreement is Reached in Senate to Begin Voting This Afternoon.
 Washington, May 13.—A final vote in the senate on the railroad bill is at last in sight. An agreement was reached that, beginning with next Monday, the senate shall meet at 11 o'clock daily instead of at noon. An arrangement also was made whereby the voting on the pending amendments for the long and short haul clause in the bill shall begin at four o'clock this afternoon and be concluded on this legislative day.
 With these amendments out of the road, pressure will be brought to push the bill along more rapidly.

Coulton Wins From McGovern.
 New York, May 13.—Johnny Coulton, rated as the fastest dantain in the country, earned a clean cut decision over "Phil" McGovern in a whirlwind ten-round bout at the Madison Athletic club last night.

SAYS CANCER KILLED EDWARD.
 Ohio Physician Declares He Examined
 King in Paris Last July.
 Columbus, O., May 13.—That King Edward VII. of England died of cancer of the throat, a secret known only in the closest court circles, was asserted by Dr. James L. Holden, 1070 Brydon road, who said that he had diagnosed the king's disease as cancer last July.
 It was through the good offices of Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of the tin plate magnate, intimate friend and acquaintance of both the king and queen of England, that King Edward and her uncle, Doctor Holden, met in Paris, King Edward then being on a visit to President Loubet.
 The examination disclosed two things, that the king was suffering from cancer of the throat and that an operation was impossible because of the location of the cancer as well as the weakened condition of the patient.
 Explaining that no hope could be held out to him, the king was instructed as to a course of treatment which it was claimed would greatly relieve his sufferings, then almost unbearable, as well as in a measure check the rapid progress being made on his constitution.

The Art of Overlooking.
 Nobody can live long in the world and not admit that the words "nothing for nothing" contain a mad amount of truth. He is, of course, a fool who does not count the cost so far as the future is concerned, but scarcely less a fool is he who does not overlook past costs. If we have any good or delightful thing in this life, at all hazards let us not taint our enjoyment by considering what we gave for it.
 Was it more than we could afford?
 Never mind; we have afforded it, we have made our purchase. Let us take off the ticket with the price and burn the receipt. There are items in life's ledger which must be overlooked unless we would spend all our days in balancing closed accounts.

What Could Be More Lucid?
 One of the sentences used by the writer of a note on recent Saturday regarding a sermon by Dr. Spangler is incorrect. The sentence in its additional part should either have been disconnected or else a subordinate conjunction used instead of a coordinate one in order to connect the modifying part to the principal or modifying part.—Roadville Correspondence

 IT'S a sign of good clothes and you'll see it in our store, for we are the exclusive agents here for United Clothes.
 These clothes are not an experiment. They are the result of thirty years of clothes-making—thirty years of honest effort to perfect an industry which has grown from a small tailor shop to a mammoth manufacturing plant, em-

HEINZE NOT GUILTY; ISSUES STATEMENT

JURY FREES COPPER MAGNATE OF CHARGE OF MISAPPLY-ING FUNDS.

TRIAL LASTED THREE WEEKS

Declares Action Has Cost Him Nearly $5,000,000, But Is Jubilant Over Acquittal—Will Now Devote Himself to Properties.

New York, May 12.—F. Augustus Heinze is again a free man. A jury in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court acquitted him of misapplying the funds of the Mercantile National bank, while he was president of the institution in 1907, and cleared him of the charge of over-clearing the checks of his brother's firm, Otto Heinze & Co. The trial lasted nearly three weeks. After the verdict was read Heinze was discharged by the court.

Failure for Government.
Thus failed gloriously the federal government's attempt to hold Heinze responsible for financing during the panic of three years ago, alleged to be in violation of the national banking

F. Augustus Heinze.

law. Charles W. Morse got 15 years for "bank wrecking," but Heinze's transactions were held legal, notwithstanding the prosecution's vigorous attempt to prove him a gambler with millions not his own.

Heinze Issues Statement.
Heinze, jubilant, issued this statement after his acquittal:

"I am naturally pleased with the verdict, but not at all surprised. The thing I most regret is the long delay in bringing the case to trial. I have been ready for trial every day since the first indictment was returned two years and a half ago. This delay has cost me between $1,000,000 and $5,000,000.
"However, as has been brought out in the evidence, I still have some of the best copper properties in the world, and I now intend to devote my whole attention to them, which I have not been able to do for two years and a half. I appreciate the loyalty of my friends who have stuck to me through it all and regret exceedingly the temporary loss which they have suffered in the depreciation in the price of the securities in which I have been interested."

Trial Not Spectacular.
The Heinze trial was not spectacular. There was too much technical testimony for the lay mind, too many intricate financial transactions which were cryptic and almost impossible to follow. Heinze himself did not go on the stand.

MANY HURT IN TRAIN WRECK.

Passenger Coaches Are Thrown Over Embankment—Three May Die.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 12.—Three men were probably fatally injured, several other passengers and trainmen were badly hurt and many persons were shaken a severe shaking up when west-bound local passenger train No. 207 on the Cleveland & Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania lines west was derailed and all but one of the cars thrown over a 14-foot embankment 13 miles south of Alliance, O., at Kensington station.

The cause of the derailment is a puzzle to railroad officials.

Washington, May 12.—President Taft has not communicated with former Vice-President Fairbanks offering him the ambassadorship to Great Britain to succeed Whitelaw Reid. At the White House the report was denied also that any communications on the subject have passed between Mr. Taft and Mr. Fairbanks.

ECUADORIAN TROOPS ON MARCH

Conflict With Peru Over Boundary Dispute Is Probable.

Washington, May 12.—Information received here points to an early conflict between the armies of Peru and Ecuador over their boundary dispute. A dispatch received at the state department from the United States con-sulate at Guayaquil, Ecuador, states that President Alfaro has left the capital for the frontier with 500 troops. It is not known at the state department at what frontier point the Peruvian army is concentrating, but the Ecuadorian forces are understood to be mobilizing at Machala, the capital of the most southerly province.

President Alfaro.

LAWYER CAUSES JURY TO WEEP.

Attorney for Doctor Hyde Delivers Seven-Hour Argument.

Kansas City, Mo., May 12.—For almost seven hours Attorney Frank P. Walsh addressed the jury which is sitting in judgment upon Dr. B. Clark Hyde here.

Not a phase of the Swope mystery was left untouched by Mr. Walsh. "If you hang Clark Hyde," declared Mr. Walsh at one point in his argument, "it will be upon the word of one woman alone—Mrs. Logan O. Swope. It is she that swears the physical knowledge of the residuary clause in Colonel Swope's will. It is the contention of the state that knowledge of this clause, and the benefits it would bring to him and his wife, caused the defendant to kill Dr. Swope."

Frequently during Mr. Walsh's speech different jurors wept. At one time four of them were crying.

SIX GIRLS AND TWO BOYS DROWNED IN MILL DAM

Rocking of Boat Causes Death to Party of Frolicsome School Children.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 12.—Six girls and two boys out of a party of twelve were drowned in a mill dam at Huntington Mills, 15 miles from here, by the capsizing of their boat. An attempt to frighten the girls by rocking the craft was the cause of the disaster.

The four who escaped are boys and they got to the shore exhausted after a vain effort to save the girls. All of the party were members of the high school at Huntington Mills, and were out for a frolic during the lunch hour. They were all between the ages of sixteen and eighteen.

It seems that in one of the boats a couple of the boys and girls tried to change their seats. One or two stood up, the boat, overcrowded, slipping some water. Some of the girls, becoming frightened at this, jumped up and the next moment the boat upset and all were thrown into the water. They arose to the surface after the first plunge, shrieking and screaming. Both of the drowned boys were in the first boat, and the girls seized them in their endeavors to save their lives. The boat filled and sank quickly.

Immediately following the upsetting of the first boat the six in the second were intensely excited and in the efforts to rescue those in the water the second boat was also capsized. All of the boys were good swimmers, but the girls became excited and dragged their would-be rescuers down.

GLAVIS SUMMARY ANTEDATED.

Wickersham's Letter Read Before Pin-chot Hearing Creates a Surprise.

Washington, May 12.—Attorney General Wickersham's name was injected again in the proceedings of the Hallinger-Pinchot investigation when Secretary Hallinger, to the surprise of many, read a letter from the attorney general in which the latter admitted he had antedated the summary of the Glavis charges which he prepared for the president.

Mr. Wickersham says he had discussed the matter with the president and had supplied him with a mass of information bearing on the subject, but that the summary "necessarily" was made up afterward and properly bore the date upon which the matter it contained was presented to and considered by the president.

German Electrical Trade.
German electrical workers increased from 24,000 in 1895, to 125,000 in 1908. Their 1909 product was worth $155,000,000, against $24,000,000 in 1894. The capital employed is $19,500,000.

WOMAN'S ACTION SAVES LIFE.

Shows Firemen How to Check Fire
By Turning Off Gas.

Chicago, May 12.—The presence of mind and bravery of Miss Nellie Hoopes, cashier of the Roma restaurant, 214 Wabash avenue, saved the lives of a dozen firemen and checked a fire in the building, when she directed men in turning off the gas from a broken three-inch main which fed the flames and overcame the firemen with poisonous gases.

Mrs. Ida Foster Cronk, proprietress of the restaurant, checked a night of a score of workmen employed in the building and ordered them to close the doors to prevent the spread of the fire. The quick work of the women saved the building and held the loss to $20,000. Guests in the Bohemian dining place rushed out in panic. The fire started in the basement, where a steamfitter removed the cap from a gas main.

POWDER BUILDING BLOWN UP.

Only Five Men Out of Hundreds Near Explosion Are Hurt.

Logansport, Ind., May 12.—An explosion that broke window glass six miles away, but out lights and knocked people who were at supper from their seats, destroyed a temporary powder house of the Casparis Stone company of Columbus, O., at Logansport last night. The building destroyed contained 200 pounds of dynamite. Five laborers out of several hundred camped in cars about the lime quarry were injured but none were killed.

BABY CARRIED AWAY BY LION.

Crowd Sees Child Nearly Killed by King of the Jungle.

Cleveland, Tenn., May 12.—A trained lion that was being exhibited here suddenly snatched a baby from the arms of its mother, carried it to the back of the stage, dashed it to the floor and planted both his paws on the little one's body. Witnesses seizing anything available as weapons advanced on the lion and diverted its attention, while a man snatched the baby from the stage. The child may die.

Finda Germs of Pellagra.

Rome, May 12.—Professor Alessandrini of the University of Rome reports that he has discovered the bacillus of pellagra. He says he found it in water instead of in moldy corn, as has been contended.

Unreasonable.

"It takes so much smartness and hurry to find out the exact truth about anything," said Uncle Eben, "that you can't expect a man who wants to talk all the time to entirely avoid falsification."

QUIZ REPUBLICANS, LINK'S INSIDE FACTS

REPRESENTATIVE BLACK BEFORE GRAND JURY IN BRI-BERY SCANDAL.

SENATOR DAILEY APPEARS

Peoria Man Who Fought Lorimer Tells Wayman What He Heard—
Other Legislators Coming—Link Gives Some Additional Information.

Chicago, May 13.—Peoria assemblymen occupied the limelight before the legislative bribery investigation, the grand jury taking up the Republican out for the first time.

Admits Visit to Lorimer.

Representative Charles F. Black of Peoria appeared before the jury in answer to a subpoena. Mr. Black, who is a Republican, upon emerging from the grand jury room admitted that he had voted for Lorimer after being called to the latter's room at a hotel.
"Ten days before the election I was taken to Lorimer's room in the St.
Nicholas hotel," he said, "Lorimer's candidacy had not yet been announced. Lorimer asked me if I thought I could vote for him. Later friends asked me to vote for Lorimer and I finally cast my ballot for him."

"I have been down at Springfield for three sessions, but I never heard of any money being used in connection with any bill."

Representative Black also testified that he had no knowledge of any "jack pot" "split up" in the Southern hotel in St. Louis or any place else.

Rumor of More Indictments.

Reports were persistent that the question of indicting a member of the Illinois legislature whose name was not mentioned in Representative Charles A. White's confession was being debated by the grand jury.

There were two rumors, one that an indictment for perjury would be voted against a state representative, and the other that a conspiracy indictment would be returned against all members named in White's confession. In an endeavor to bring the St. Louis "jack-pot" distribution within the jurisdiction of a Cook county grand jury.

Representative Thomas Gorman, a Democrat, also of Peoria, was another witness before the grand jury.
Mr. Gorman said he voted for Lorimer but emphatically denied that he got any money for so doing. He declared that he had cast his vote for a Republican because he felt it was the only way that the deadlock could be broken.

Link Gives Inside Facts.

Representative Link in his story of how he came to vote for Lorimer for senator said that in May, 1909, some two weeks before Lorimer was elected, he went driving with two men at Springfield.

"After the three men had spent considerable time in discussing all sorts of topics, one of Link's hosts asked with great earnestness:

"Say, Link, could you vote for a Republican for the senate?"

Link pondered over the question for a few moments and replied:
"Under certain circumstances I might vote for a Republican for the United States senate."

Says Senator Lorimer.

Immediately the conveyance was turned and headed for the St. Nicholas hotel. Representative Link was taken upstairs, and, while his two friends waited in the corridor outside, was ushered into Mr. Lorimer's room.

After a few preliminary remarks had been exchanged, Mr. Lorimer, according to Representative Link, repeated the query that had been put during the ride.

"Could you vote for a Republican for senator?"

"I could," replied Link. "There are two Republicans for whom I could vote for United States senator. One of them is Speaker Shurtliff and the other is yourself, Mr. Lorimer."

A week or so after these conversations took place Link says that he was approached by Representative Lee O'Neil Brown, minority leader, who asked him the same question that had been propounded during the ride and by Mr. Lorimer during the interview at the hotel.

"Could you vote for a Republican
for the United States senate?"

Browne is Surprised.

"I bent you to it; I fixed that week ago," Link said, shaking with mirth.

Browne seemed a bit astonished but pleased, and, after extending his felicitations, went away.

On May 26 William Lorimer was elected United States senator by a combination of 65 Republicans and 53 Democrats who voted for him.

A few weeks later—in July, 1909—
Link says that he met Browne in St.
Louis and that the minority leader handed him $1,000 for his vote for Lorimer, which the Representative from Mitchell promptly pocketed with thanks.

Banker Indicted for Larceny.

Worcester, Mass., May 13.—John A.
Hall, former treasurer of the South Bridge Savings bank, was indicted by the county grand jury on 15 counts charging him with the larceny of $104,000 of the bank's funds.

Big Sawmill is Burned.

Winnipeg, Man., May 13.—Burrows big sawmill at Grandview, Manitoba, with a large quantity of stock, was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

Boy Conscience Stricken.

A conscience-stricken boy ran almost breathless into the children's court at Pittsburgh, Pa., held up his hand, and interrupted the proceedings by saying: "I want to be tried with those four boys. I was mixed up in the taking of those bicycles." The justice stopped questioning the four prisoners and turned to the newcomer, who described himself as Louis Katz, 13 years old. "It is the first time I ever did anything like that," Katz continued, "and it worried me so much that I could not sleep. I don't think I need any punishment, though, for I'll never do anything wrong again." A complaint was taken against Louis and he was paroled.
The four other boys were bailed.

Cab Signals in Europe.

Cab signals are used in Europe, but not in America. "In England the Great Western is trying out a cab signal system which is said to work well, all of the errors made being on the side of safety. A wire and a contact shoe furnish the means of operating a whistle and a bell in the cab.
While European tests with automatic stops have proved highly successful, the general attitude of railroad signal authorities in the United States is that neither is feasible.

Habitation in the Clouds.

The highest inhabited place in the world is the Buddhist monastery of Ilhmo, Tibet, which is about 17,000 feet above sea level.

Helen Most Popular Name.

Statistics have been amassed by some one in a girls' college, where there is an enrollment of 1,500. Of this number more than 100 have the name of Helen, which means light.
Mary came second with less than 90.
Then followed Margaret, Ruth, Florence and Elizabeth in that order. Old-fashioned names are frequent. There are still many Hopes and Dorothys, and a few Emilys and Penelopes, but Abigail, Huldah and Hepzibah seem to have outlived their popularity in America.

The Ticklemouse

—and his Sleepyland Adventures

By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

Through the Coal Chute

(Part III—Tabby's Magazine)

"I CAN'T seem to get my bearings," said the Ticklemouse as they wandered through the moonlit courtyard of Old King Coal's palace.
"What do you make of it, Willy?"
"Dunno," answered fat little Willy.
"All sides of this palace look alike to me.
I thought one of these driveways would lead out into Gooseville."

"Gooseville!" exclaimed Dorfy, eagerly. "You mean that little Mother Goose town where we hung the May baskets?
Oh, can't we go there, Mr. Ticklemouse?"

The mouse nodded. Willy squinted one eye and stood on one leg like a stork. "Gooseville sounds first rate to me," he said with a grin. "I wish.... oh, I wish...."

Crash! The palace walls fell in ruins, amid the cries of the frightened courtiers and servants. They heard Old King Coal's angry bellow, and over the heaps of stone and mortar scrambled the four, tumbling into a broad highway dotted with playing card signboards. A sailo-mobile, with all sails set, stood mysteriously waiting, and into this they jumped.

The Ticklemouse ran to the wheel, Willy hauled in the sheet, and the strong night breeze whirled them swiftly to the village gates of Gooseville.

"Better than a gooseplane, ten to one!" chuckled their captain, as they scrambled out of the sailomobile in front of Mother Goose's dark castle.

"Like as not she's out trying to make some of her rhymes come out right!" said Willy. "She's always worrying about the troubles her verses get her children into. Say, Uncle Tick, what's that smell?"

The Ticklemouse sniffed the breeze.
"Malt," he said, "and it's over there back of the hill. Come on, let's find it."

He and Willy licked their chops as they ran. "I built this house," was the sign above the door of the ramshackle building before which they stopped. "Whose name is that on it?" asked Dorfy.

"Looks like 'John,'" answered Willy.

"By the great round cheese, Willy," groaned his uncle, "You're right. I'd know that tail-rip, anywhere!" He pointed to all that was left of his dear cousin Timothy Tickleup, lying beside a half-empty sack of malt. "He was a brave old rat. Timothy wasn't he afraid of anything?" Willy began to tremble. "Let's hurry home. I don't care for any malt, Uncle Tick."

"Nor I," with a shudder. "We'll be lucky to get out of this alive.
W-w-what's that?"

A dog howled outside. "The one that worried the cat that killed Cousin Tim for eating the malt," whispered the Mouse.
"The man all tattered and torn who kissed and married the maid forlorn lives on the first floor, and the priest all shaven and shorn is boarding with them—
I read it in the 'Gooseville Quill.'
They wouldn't harm us, but—that cat!"

They reached the porch in safety and were about to hurry back to their sailo-mobile, when Willy Washingmouse plucked his uncle by the sleeve. "Look in that cellar window!" he hissed, his hair rising.

They looked—and ran! For beside a sickening candle in the cozy basement, nodding over the pages of a new magazine sat the dreadful Enemy—the cat that killed Cousin Timothy!

"Mr. Ticklemouse," asked Dorfy, when they had sailed back to the coal chute and crawled safely through to the nursery again. "What do you suppose that horrid old Tabby was reading?"

The two mice shivered. "Give it up," said the Ticklemouse. "I never stopped to look."

"I did," said Dorfy, proudly. "And do you know what it said on the cover of her magazine? It said—'Good Mousekeeping!'"

PURITY AND QUALITY TALKS

PASTEURIZED MILK

Your confidence in our Pasteurized Milk is of greatest importance to us. We already have the confidence and patronage of over 50% of the Janesville homes; and are equipped to supply many more.

This is due to the purity and superior quality of our milk; the cleanliness of its production and handling from its source to your table.

If it is good for half the homes, it stands to reason it is good for a great many more.

The Janesville Pure Milk Co. is a responsible firm, realizing the absolute necessity of clean, pure milk.
Produced, bottled and delivered under sanitary conditions, the same as those used by all the better milk dealers in the United States.

Our station is open to daylight throughout, no dark corners; you can inspect it anytime. Time and effort is generously expended in keeping it sanitary.

The mechanical equipment, consisting of an up-to-date three-stage pasteurizer, a bottler and sealer, is thoroughly cleaned and sterilized with hot water and live steam immediately after the milk is bottled.

Another improvement, lately installed, is the mechanical bottle washer and sterilizer, clean water and live steam cleansing and sterilizing the bottles in a short time.

The best milk is never too good. We maintain a high standard of purity, not just because the law requires it, but for moral reasons as well.

The pasteurizing of our clean pure milk should be the strongest incentive for its use, for both drink and food, by your family as well as your neighbors.

Pasteurization frees the milk from all impurities that it may contain while in the raw state, making it perfectly safe for all uses by all people, especially babies and small children. It means health protection to your family, which always demands your serious consideration.

You cannot afford to run a single risk by not using our Pasteurized Milk. Send us your order and be on the safe side.

The greatest force in the commercial world today is ADVERTISING.

The man who says advertising doesn't pay is either a non-advertiser, and is not informed or is a failure in business. Every reasonable—successful merchant knows advertising pays.

Every trade paper in every line of business has a department devoted entirely to a discussion of advertising and every trade paper is talking the MERITS of advertising, not the DEMERITS.

Merchants in every town, in every line are advertising, and in every town or city, the biggest merchant is the biggest advertiser.

For every advertising failure there are twenty advertising successes.

Every SUCCESSFUL advertiser is willing to give an appropriation large enough to accomplish results. He doesn't expect a few dollars spent in advertising to do the work that he would be willing to pay ten times as much for. If a 4-inch ad run 50 times in a year would increase a business 10 percent it would be worth twenty times its cost.

Advertising gets handsome results, but it won't do the impossible.

The merchant who sits back and does not advertise is neglecting his business.

The merchant who cannot afford to advertise is like one who can't afford a well lighted store, who can't afford modern improvements, who can't afford to bid for your trade.

Longest Bridge.

Great Britain has the longest cantilever bridge in the world, in the great Forth bridge across the Firth of Forth, Scotland. This bridge has two cantilever spans of 1,710 feet. It was begun in 1883 and completed in 1890. The total length of the five spans of the Queensboro cantilever bridge is 3,724 feet. On December 23, 1879, the Tay bridge, Scotland, was partly destroyed by a gale while an express train was passing over it. The train disappeared in the water; a gap of about 5,000 feet was made and 80 lives were lost.

A Poor Substitute.

The trouble with a lot of people who cannot be famous is that they are willing to accept notoriety as a substitute.

The great volume of advertising carried in these columns is due to the great circulation of The Gazette. 5300 homes receive The Gazette daily and from this large number of homes many people are looking for just the things advertised each day.

Growing hatred to Jesus, Matt. xli: 25-32, 38-42.

Golden Text—He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad. Matt. xli:30.

(1.) Verse 25—What are the indications that Jesus will finally conquer the Devil and destroy him?

(2.) What are your ideas as to whether the time will ever come, when sickness, sin and sorrow, will be cast out of everybody?

(3.) Verse 25—Which is the most amazing work of God, birth, life, death, or miracle? Why?

(4.) Verse 24—How is it that when a good man is praised by the people that hypocrites become jealous, and that good men rejoice?

(5.) When a man begins to undervalue or nullify the good work of another, or to explain away its gracious significance, in what class do you place him, and what are your reasons for your conclusion?

(6.) What motive prompted the Pharisees to ascribe Jesus' miracle to Beelzebub, and what inspired the motives?

(7.) Verses 25-27—By what power did Jesus know their thoughts, and what reason is there to think that today he knows your thoughts and mine?

(9.) Can you think of, or invent, any good reason which would induce Satan to cast out Satan?

(11.) What would result to Satan's kingdom if he were to begin to destroy his own works?

(12.) There appear to have been, at that time, other children of the Jews than Jesus, with power to cast out devils, which power was presumably ascribed to God, by the Pharisees. What therefore was the logical conclusion of Jesus' reference to that fact?

(13.) Verse 25—What is the evidence that Jesus did cast out devils, and other great works by the Spirit of God?

(14.) Verse 25—What is the kingdom of God on earth? If the strong man here stands for Satan, what then are his "goods"?

(15.) In order to dispossess Satan of the souls of men, what according to the figure here used by Jesus, is necessary?

(16.) What is the evidence, that the Spirit of God, to-day, does bind Satan when a soul cries to God for deliverance?

(17.) Verse 30—Why is the negative sin of not accepting Christ, as bad as the positive sin of rejecting him?

(18.) Which is the ruder and why, the man who sets a house on fire, or the man who refuses to put out the first small blaze, when he had full opportunity to do so?

(19.) Verse 31—What is the sin against the Holy Ghost? (This question may have to be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(20.) Verses 34-40—Why did Jesus imply that they were an evil generation for asking for a sign?

(22.) Is there any record where a miracle alone, was the means of any person's conversion?

(23.) Verses 40-41—If the story of Jesus and the whole should prove not to be historic, as some claim, and Jesus believed it was, what effect should that have upon our love and admiration for Jesus?

(24.) Verse 42—Why was it not immediate for Jesus to say he was greater than Solomon?

Perverted Taste in Art.

Nothing is more common than to hear it said of reputed works of art that they are very good but difficult to understand. We are quite used to such assertions, and yet to say that a work of art is good, but incomprehensible to the majority of men, is the same as saying of some kind of food that it is very good, but that most people can't eat it. The majority of men may not like rotten cheese or putrefying growls—dishes esteemed by people with perverted tastes; but bread and fruit are only good when they please the majority of men. And it is the same with art. Perverted art may not please the majority of men, but good art always pleases everyone.—Totipot.

An Eccentric Funeral.

The vicar of the church of St. Vincent, who recently died at the age of 77, left the bulk of his fortune, estimated at $100,000, to the town of Riom on certain conditions. She insisted on an entirely "white" funeral, with white trappings, white flowers and white horses. The late vicar bequeathed $200 to the local band on condition it played Chopin's "Funeral March" continually during the obsequies all the way from the house to the church and from the church to the graveyard, a distance of 10 miles. The band played Chopin's "Funeral March" 57 times, and then retired almost manfully to a village inn, where a portion of the $200 was consumed in drinks.—London Telegraph.

Law Would Have Barred Author.

Dean Stanley's handwriting was atrocious. The late Lord Lytton handed in an amendment to the tory reform bill of Lord Derby. The clerk at the table could not read it, nor could any one else. At last Lord Lytton—a rare scholar and an accomplished man of letters—was asked to read it himself. He explained that, though he could not pretend to read the text, its purpose was to enact that no man should be admitted to the poll unless he could sign his own name in legible handwriting.

"For a time, I grew up. But my father, I think, was permanently shocked by the loss of the woman he had loved and whom he had brought into all this cruelty. She had been so lovely, so beautiful—she was so beautiful, my mother! So they sent me away to France, to the schools. I grew up, I presume, proof in part of the excellence of my father's theory. They told me that I was a beautiful animal!"

"The contempt, the scorn, the pathos—the whole tragedy of her voice and bearing—were such as I cannot set down on paper, and such as I scarce could endure to hear. Never in my life before I felt such a pity for a human being, never so much desire to do what I might in sheer compassion."

"But now, how clear it all became to me! I could understand many strange things about the character of this singular woman, her whims, her unaccountable moods, her seeming carelessness, yet withal, her dignity and sweetness and air of breeding—above all her mysteriousness. Let others judge her for themselves. There was only looking in my heart that I might find some word of comfort. What could comfort her? Was not life, indeed, for her to remain a perpetual tragedy?"

"But, madam," said I, at length, "you must not wrong your father and your mother and yourself. These two loved each other devotedly. Well, what more? You are the result of a happy marriage. You are beautiful, you are splendid, by that reason."

"Perhaps. Even when I was 16 I was beautiful," she mused. "I have heard rumors of that. But I say to you that then I was only a beautiful animal. Also, I was a vicious animal. I had in my heart all the malice which my mother never spoke. I felt in my soul the wish to injure women, to punish men, to torment them, to make them pay! To set even those balances of torture—ah, that was my ambition! I had not forgotten that, when I first met you, when I first heard of—her, the woman whom you love, whom already in your savage, strong way you have wedded—the woman whose vows I spoke with her—I—I, Helena von Ritz, with history such as mine!"

"Father, father!"—she turned to him swiftly, "rise—go! I cannot now speak before you. Leave us alone until I call!"

Obedient as though he had been the child and she the parent, the old man rose and tottered feebly from the room.

"Why should you? There is no need. Do not!"

"Ah, I must, because it is fair," said she. "I have lost, lost! I have told you I would pay my wages."

After a pause she turned her face straight toward mine and went on with her old splendid bravery.

"So, now, you see, when I was young and beautiful I had rank and money. I had brains. I had hatred of men. I had contempt for the aristocracy. My heart was peasant after all. My principles were those of the republican. Revolution was in my blood."

To set even those balances of torture—ah, that was my ambition! I had not forgotten that, when I first met you, when I first heard of—her, the woman whom you love, whom already in your savage, strong way you have wedded—the woman whose vows I spoke with her—I—I, Helena von Ritz, with history such as mine!"

"Father, father!"—she turned to him swiftly, "rise—go! I cannot now speak before you. Leave us alone until I call!"

Obedient as though he had been the child and she the parent, the old man rose and tottered feebly from the room.

"Why should you? There is no need. Do not!"

"Ah, I must, because it is fair," said she. "I have lost, lost! I have told you I would pay my wages."

After a pause she turned her face straight toward mine and went on with her old splendid bravery.

"So, now, you see, when I was young and beautiful I had rank and money. I had brains. I had hatred of men. I had contempt for the aristocracy. My heart was peasant after all. My principles were those of the republican. Revolution was in my blood."

produce good human beings! In short, believe me, a victim, the hope of the world is in a real democracy. Slowly, gradually, I was coming to believe that."

She paused a moment. "Then, one time, monsieur—I met you, here in this very room! God pity me! You were the first man I had ever seen. God pity me!—I believe I loved you—that night, that very first night! We are friends, we are brave. You are man and gentleman, so I may say that, now. I am no longer woman. I am but a sacrifice."

"Opportunity must exist, open and free for all the world," she went on, not looking at me more than I could now at her. "I have set my life to prove this thing. When I came here to this America—out of pique, out of a love of adventure, out of sheer daring and exultation in impudence—then I saw why I was born, for what purpose! It was to do such work as I might to prove the theory of my father, and to justify the life of my mother. For that thing I was born. For that thing I have been damned on this earth; I may be damned in the life to come, unless I can make some great atonement. For these I suffer and shall always suffer. But what of that? There must always be a sacrifice."

"The unspeakable tragedy of her voice cut to my soul. 'But listen!' I broke out. 'You are young. You are free. All the world is before you. You can have anything you like—'

"Ah, do not talk to me of that," she exclaimed imperiously. "Do not tempt me to attempt the deceit of myself! I made myself as I am, long ago. I did not love, I did not know it. As to marriage, I did not need it. I had abundant means without. I was in the upper ranks of society. I was there; I was satisfied; I lived with them; but always I had my purposes, my plans. For them I paid, paid, paid, as a woman must, with—what a woman can have."

"But now, I am far ahead of my story. Let me bring it on. I went to Paris. I have sown some seeds of venom, some seeds of revolution, in one place or another in Europe in my time. Ah, it works; it will go! Here and there I have cast a human life, which I disliked; but I did it. Alas, guided, unguided, by misadventure as I had been—well, as I said, I went to Paris."

"Ah, sir, will you not, too, leave the room, and let me tell on this story to myself, to my own soul? It is bitter for my confessor than for you."

"Let me, then, be your confessor!" said I. "Forget! Forget! You have not been this which you say. Do I not know?"

Luck of Peacock's Feathers. The peacock's feathers appropriation is nothing like so common as it used to be. Perhaps Whitaker's celebrated peacock room helped to break it down.

At any rate, peacock's feathers are ordinary enough articles of decoration in many happy and pious homes. There are shops in London that keep large stocks of them, and you may buy these bringers of misfortune at a shilling a bundle. Did the superstition originate because of the reputed pride of the peacock, or the 'pride shall have a fall' theory? Or is it that the 'eye' of the feather is supposed to see undesirable happenings, which somehow get published upon the house-top? One rather feels that the beautiful tail was nature's compensation to the bird for giving it the most abundant of all voices.

Quite a Puddle. My child had been taught to be careful about spilling water on the floor. One day she was taken to see the Mississippi river, which flowed by the city where she lived. Upon reaching the bank of the river, where it could be seen in all its wide expanse, she exclaimed: "Oh, who spilled all that water?" From the Baltimore.

Backache Means Dying Kidneys

A Remarkable Treatment That Saves the Kidneys. How You May Cure Yourself Quickly and Thoroughly.

With the progress of science comes an increasing knowledge of the human body. It has been so thoroughly tested and its secrets have been so thoroughly revealed, that a well-known fact is that the kidneys are the most important organs in the body. They are the filters of the blood, and they are the organs that are most often diseased. Backache is a common symptom of kidney disease, and it is a warning sign that you should pay attention to your kidneys.

Dr. J. C. Williams' Kidney Pills are a remarkable treatment for kidney disease. They are a natural remedy, and they are a cure for all kidney diseases. They are a cure for backache, and they are a cure for all the symptoms of kidney disease. They are a cure for all the diseases of the kidneys, and they are a cure for all the diseases of the body.

DAILY DIET HINTS

FOOD POISONING.

The body produces enough poison every few hours to kill one, if the excretory organs should entirely fail. The poison is made chiefly from superfluous and improperly mixed foods. The elimination of these poisons is a constant drain on vitality that should be used to better advantage, as we see forcibly when one is excessively poisoned with tainted beef, fish or fruit. Careful selection, thorough mastication, avoiding overeating, exercise, right mental attitude, not expending food long in damp, warm air, avoid poisoning to a degree. To ignore these facts and to dwell upon them morbidly are equally injurious. To know that the food is good and why is to enjoy it the more and benefit the more; not to know where danger lies is dangerous. The food laws are doing much to protect us, but we must use our own judgment.

Waster of Time Never Welcome.

Do you know why you are not well? Remember that Lavater said: "The great rule of moral conduct is, next to God, to respect time."

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, May 12, 1870.—Jottings.—The Stove trial for the killing of Humphrey Roberts was concluded last evening the jury returning a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree. Under the instructions of the Judge, the jury were left no discretion but to find the prisoner guilty of murder in the first degree, or of manslaughter in the third or fourth degrees, if they agreed, and did not acquit him. But after having been out several hours without any likelihood of agreeing, they were recalled, and the nature of the charge so altered that they could find him guilty of manslaughter in the second degree. They retired again, and very soon agreed upon a verdict as above stated.

The death in this vicinity is getting to be really serious. Grass, so far from growing, seems to be parched up, while grain is halting between two opinions, not knowing whether to stand still and await events or to give up the light, and garden seeds are having a rough time. The disappearance of the snow there has been but one or two showers of sufficient magnitude to lay the dust.

Letting Johnnies Down Easy.
The Chorus Ladies (after the show)—We're boycotting lobster and wine, Willie. They soaked you altogether too much for them. Order us two portions of cold breakfast-food and a pot of cereal coffee, there's a dear boy!—Puck.

Back and Forth.
"You're an excited fellow, that I believe when you get into heaven the first question you'll ask will be: 'Are my wings on straight?'" Connie—Yes, dear, and I shall be sorry that you won't be there to tell me.—Illustrated News.

WINDMILLS

Every possible improvement is to be found in a Burton Mill. Every part is constructed as simple as possible and made to perform its full quota of work.

An example: The angle of the piston to the pump rod—in the most amount of work—is so small that the friction is reduced to a minimum, permitting the mill to run in lighter winds than others and of course pumping more water.

Drop us a postal for all information or better still, call and see them.
